Local Factory To Be Erected In Pootung

BY DAVID ARAKIE
(Financial Editor)

Jonathan Swift it was who observed that whoever could make two ears of corn or two blades of grass grow where but one grew before would perform a more essential service for mankind and his country than the whole race of politicians put together.

The industrialists of China certainly are working along that line, for newer industries are coming into existence every year. The Chinese in fact are quite enthusiastic regarding schemes to make their country independent of outside sources for supplies.

The success that has attended the past ventures has fired young China and in spite of the bad state in which trade has fallen in recent times money is still forthcoming for new plants and new industries. It is signal proof of the people in the potentialities of the country. If only China could be immune from the constant political turmoils and the banditry or the soldiery there would quickly dawn an era of industrialisation that would surprise even the most optimistic of us.

PLENTY OF MONEY

Wonderful as has been the march of progress in the past few years it is nothing compared to what can be done—with sound government. There is plenty of money ready to be invested in sound schemes, and in spite of the discouraging political state of affairs factories and mills continue to increase in the interior and in large towns.

Out of the ordinary run of company floatations in China so far is the announcement of the formation of a company with a capital of a million dollars for the erection of two up-to-date plants, one in Shanghai and the other in Hongkong, for the manufacture of all the cartons and paper requirements of China. The Company is to be known as the Hongkong and Shanghai Paper Products and Carton Company, with head offices in Shanghai. The plants will be fully equipped to take care of all this trade.

TO BE IN POOTUNG

The Shanghai factory will be in Pootung and stand on a piece of land some 30 mows in area. Shanghai alone, it is estimated, consumes yearly over a hundred million cartons for the packing of cigarettes, noodles, soap, etc., while over 50 million of ordinary show boxes, cases, etc., are imported annually into Shanghai alone. Japan supplies most of these and when the factories get to working here there should be a big dent made into importations from Japan and abroad of these articles. Shanghai depends largely on Japan for supplies of cartons. Inferior cartons are also made in the Settlement by Chinese by hand.

Each of the plants, it is stated, will be able to turn out about 100,000 cartons a day and about a similar number of envelopes. The plant will also be equipped with machinery for the making of all kinds of paper boxes and cases, the Zellerbach Paper Company supplying all the Company's requirements for boxboards. The organiser of this concern is Mr. Jack E. Ellis, the energetic China Manager of the Zellerbach Paper Company. He is leaving for Hongkong today on the President Jefferson, and while in the Southern Colony will select a site for the Hongkong factory. The supervisary staffs at both mills will be composed of European and American experts.

The board of directors of this company comprise Shanghai and Hongkong merchants.

LAWYER SUBMITS PREMIUM BONDS ARE NOT LOTTERY

Chinese Bank Manager On Trial In Mixed Court

Defending the manager of a local Chinese bank who is charged with conducting a lottery, Mr. W. S. Fleming declared yesterday at the Mixed Court that if the sale of premium bonds is held to constitute lottery gambling the police should bring to book some of the biggest institutions in the city for doing business of this nature.

The case, which is being heard by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan, was adjourned, after counsel had argued at length on the definition of the term "lottery." Mme. Flora Rosemberg is also appearing for the defendant.

Mr. Fleming stated that the bank in question is chartered by the Central Chinese Government and is a recognised institution. A few months ago the Government suppressed lotteries of all sorts, making an exception as to premium bonds, and this, counsel contended, showed conclusively that premium bonds could not be considered in the light of a lottery.

In each drawing out of 20,000 numbers 4,700 are drawn and each number is good for three successive drawings. Nominally the deposit is fixed for a year but the depositor reserves the right to withdraw his money before due date. It is therefore practically a deposit on call.

Mr. Fleming submitted that companies have spacious offices here conducting this business which has been in operation for quite a length of time. Almost everyone in Shanghai holds a premium bond, he said, and the police were no exception to the rule.

Mr. Maitland, prosecuting, stated that the scheme of the bank came under the category of a lottery and furthermore they were unlicensed. Irrespective of the whether or not the depositors got back their principle it was still a lottery.

Mr. Fleming said the managing-director of the bank who appeared in Court was an important and influential member of the Chinese community and the bank itself is a financial institution. As a matter of fact this scheme was a better one than others of like character flourishing here. The bank started this scheme with perfect good faith and intentions. Mr. Maitland then produced regulations governing lotteries.

Mr. Fleming remarked that he could show the Court a table giving a list of eight other institutions here engaged in the same business together with their inception, capital and history. He could also produce documents to show that the Peking Government sanctioned the defendant's carrying on this business.

Washington Ball Applications Will Close On Tuesday

Applications for invitations to the Washington's Birthday Ball of the American Company, S.V.C., to be held at the New Carlton on February 22, may be made during the China New Year holidays to Mr. J. J. Rogers at the Equitable Eastern Banking Corporation, 1 Kiukiang Road, or Mr. J. E. Doyle, at the office of THE CHINA PRESS, 41 Canton Road.

But five more days remain to secure invitations for the annual American Company affair as reservations will be closed next Tuesday, two days before the ball.

Final arrangements were discussed at a meeting of the general committee held last night at the home of United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham.

Dancing will start at 9:30 and supper is to be served in the dining room from 11 o'clock until 2 a.m. No tables are to be placed on the main floor of the ball room. Tables will not be reserved.

DEMONSTRATE RADIO TONIGHT TO GUESTS AT STATION HERE

Concert To Be Heard At Frenchtown Plant

FINE PROGRAM

American School Girls To Sing; Bigani To Play

Radio Program Tonight

Tonight's program to be broadcast by XRO, the wireless telephone station operated by THE CHINA PRESS and the Radio Corporation of China will be as follows:

Two violin solos by Mr. V. Bigani, violinist.

Song by the Girls Glee Club of the American School.

Song by Miss Bernice Austin, with violin obligatto by Miss Louise Macklin.

Piano solo by Miss Fred Fromell, head of the American School's music department.

Song by the Girls Glee Club.

News bulletins and special news bulletins.

At tonight's radio concert, which will be the last to be broadcasted until after the China New Year holidays, a number of prominent Shanghailanders will be the guests of THE CHINA PRESS and Radio Corporation of China at a special demonstration of wireless telephony at the French Wireless station.

THE CHINA PRESS and Radio Corporation through the courtesy of the Director and members of the staff of the French Wireless station, one of the largest and most powerful in the world, have issued invitations to 25 prominent people to 'listen in' at the Wireless Station, where special arrangements have been made for receiving the concert broadcasted tonight.

The French station (FFZ) 'listens in' every night when XRO broadcasts and was the first station to guarantee that they would not interfere during concerts so that the growing army of wireless fans in Shanghai could hear the musical concerts and news bulletins without a signal to marr the numbers. Appreciating the untold possibilities of the radio in China, M. Macri and other members of the staff gave their instant approval and co-operation to a suggestion that the scope of the concerts be widened by inviting representatives of various organisations to 'listen in.'

Among those who have been invited for the special demonstration at the French Wireless station tonight are Mr. P. Legendre, Secretary of the French Council; Mr. A. Chapeaux of the French Council; Dr. E. Tartois of the French Council; Mr. Y. Ikeda of the Eastern News Agency; Mr. Y. Kinoshita, Superintendent of the Japanese Police; Mr. M. Chapeaux of Chapeaux Freres and Company; Mr. A. Vandelet and Dr. A. Vallet of the Echo de Chine; Mr. W. A. White, United States Marshal Thurston Porter and others.

Tonight's program, arranged for the special demonstration, includes songs by the Girls Glee Club of the Shanghai American School, a piano solo by Miss Freda Fromell; a vocal solo by Miss Bernice Austin with violin obligatto by Miss Louise Macklin, and two violin solos by Mr. V. Bigani, accompanied by Mr. Currens at the piano.

The Girls Glee Club of the American School is fully as good as the Boys', which pleased the radio fans of the city a few nights ago. Miss Fromell, head of the music department at the school, is an accomplished pianist, who is playing for the radio for the first time, and Miss Austin, in her previous appearances for the radio made a decided hit because of the clearness and sweetness of her voice on the wireless waves.

Mr. Bigani is one of the foremost wielders of the violin bow in Shanghai, and favorably known to all the radio enthusiasts because of his previous appearances for the radio.

DR. SUN YAT-SEN SAILS TODAY TO UNIFY THE SOUTH

Goes To Canton On President Jefferson At Citizens Request

Dr. Sun Yat-sen will sail for Canton on the President Jefferson at 10 o'clock this morning to gather up the skeins of disorder now reigning there and attempt to unify the Southern forces under one leader.

The Southern leader and his staff will occupy four cabins on the Admiral Line vessel.

Dr. Sun is going South on the invitation of numerous bodies in Canton who have repeatedly requested his presence as the one unifying force they think is necessary to bring Canton back to normalcy.

He had made all preparations to sail once before but changed his plans at the last minute when news of the latest uprising there caused his friends to dissuade him from going.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, February 13.—The Kwangsi troops under the Command of Li I-piao were enveloped by the Cantonese troops yesterday and in consequence, General Shen Hung-ying is now striving to devise means to rescue the Kwangsi troops. In this connection, rumors are rife here that a secret understanding has been brought about between Mr. Hu Han-ming and the Yunnan troops that in case the Mintang Party rise in arms against General Shen Hung-ying's troops, the Yunnan troops shall maintain neutrality toward the Mintang party and that Mr. Hu Han-ming has already remitted military funds amounting to $150,000 to the Yunnan troops as a commutative condition.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, February 13.—As a successor of Mr. Hu Han-ming, Mr. Hsu Shao-chen has been appointed Civil Governor of Kwangtung. It is expected that the new Civil Governor, accompanied by Mr. Wang Chen-wei and Mr. Sun Ko, son of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, will arrive here before long. The reason why Mr. Hu Han-ming has been relieved of the Civil governorship is attributable to the alleged discord between him and Mr. Sun Ko. It is, however, inferred in political circles here that the tenure of Mr. Hsu Shao-chen's office as Civil Governor of Kwangtung is of a temporary nature. In order to tide over the China New Year, the Mintang party has already effected an understanding with the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and other public bodies for a loan to the amount of $400,000.

Fined $5 For Raising Row

James E. Wasby was fined $5 and cautioned when he appeared before Judge Peter Grain in the British Police Court yesterday charged with being drunk and disorderly and with having assaulted a chauffeur employed by the China Motors.

He admitted being drunk and said he had lost his position as a result. He could not remember whether or not he had assaulted the chauffeur for not driving faster, he said, as one or two drinks made him lose his head entirely.

CHINA MEDICAL BODY TO START SESSIONS TODAY

Six-Day Conference To Open At McTyeire School

A busy week of work will be opened at the McTyeire School this morning at 8:30 when the China Medical Missionary Association begins its six-day conference. Between 150 and 200 delegates have assembled here for the meeting and sessions will be held morning, afternoon and evening.

The conference was inaugurated last evening with a reception at the school. There were about 300 doctors and their friends in attendance for a social evening. After greetings had been exchanged the assembly listened to a pleasing musical program.

Miss Louise Macklin rendered a violin solo and vocal solos were given by Mrs. Richard D. Vanderbrugh and Dr. W. W. Peter. Miss Burney presided at the piano.

Following the program refreshments were served.

The subject to be taken up at the opening meeting this morning is "Medical Mission Policy" and the program includes a review of the recent survey of the China Continuation Committee, the reports of the five Commissions considered at the National Christian Conference and the report of the Educational Commission to China.

The afternoon will be devoted to sectional meetings and this evening an interesting program will be taken up, including the following papers:

"The Activated Sludge Process of Sewage Disposal in Shanghai," by Dr. Charles Harper.

"What Public Health Activities are Possible of Immediate Initiation in China," by Dr. Wu Lien-teh.

"Report of the Work of Central Epidemics Prevention Bureau in Peking," by Dr. Edgar Tsen.

"Public Health Activities in Nanking," by Dr. C. W. Woodworth.

Tomorrow evening papers on "Pasteur" and "Lister" will be presented by Drs. C. Noel Davis and E. G. Gauntlett respectively.

Public Bodies At Chengchow Fear Trouble

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 10.—The public bodies at Chengchow have wired to the Government, stating that traffic between Hsinyangchow, Chengchow and Changtehfu has been resumed as a result of their persuasive influence upon the strikers.

They say that the strike is temporarily over but that agitators are still busy. They report that the workmen of the Lung-Hai Railway are contemplating going on strike.

They request the Government to take strong measures to prevent any further trouble.

VINDICATION FOR DAIRY KEEPER BY THE MIXED COURT

Owner Of Sanitary Dairy Given Clean Bill

A complete vindication for the proprietor of the Sanitary Dairy, Sung Kah-tah, who was charged a week ago with selling adulterated milk was given by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui of the Mixed Court and Mr. Eardley Maitland, public prosecutor, yesterday when the case came up on remand.

Mr. Maitland announced to the Court that he was instructed to state that at the first hearing one of the witnesses had testified that he received milk from the dairy which was found to be adulterated. This was wrong and he asked leave to withdraw the charge and apologise. He had been informed that the defendant's dairy was one of the most sanitary and up-to-date in the city.

The defendant stated that the foreign witness had declared he had been receiving milk from the Sanitary Dairy for two years, while the dairy had not been opened until last July. The report of the previous hearing had got into the papers and caused him considerable damage, but he supposed, being a Chinese, he would have no redress.

A coolie charged with delivering milk from an unlicensed dairy to patrons in the Settlement was fined $10 yesterday. Sanitary Inspector Fenshaw stated that the dairy in question, the Tsung Sze dairy, in Chinese territory, was in a very unsanitary condition.

SHRINER PARTY DUE TO ARRIVE HERE TOMORROW

Caravan Will Put On Ceremonial Saturday

The Shriners of Islam Temple now making pilgrimage in the Far East are expected to arrive here from Manila and Hongkong about 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. They will be met at the dock by local Shriners and will parade to the Astor House. It is planned to entertain the visitors with a Chinese "chow" at Eddie's at 8 p.m.

The ceremonial to be held for Nomad Oasis will take place on Saturday at the Town Hall, novices reporting for examination at 10 a.m. Luncheon will be at the Astor House at 1 p.m. and the executive session at the Town Hall will begin at 2 o'clock. A banquet will be held at the Astor in the evening.

On Sunday the visiting Nobles and their ladies will be informally entertained and on Monday morning a steamer will take the party for a trip up the river. In the evening there will be a grand ball at the Astor House and Tuesday morning the party will leave by rail for Peking, where a ceremonial will be held.

FRENCH PLAN TO EXTEND BLOCKADE TO SEAPORTS, BERLIN OFFICIALS HEAR

Squadron Of Warships Reported To Have Been Designated For Purpose; Germans Thrown Into Consternation

BRITISH ARE GROWING PESSIMISTIC

Premier Bonar Law Sees Danger To Entente If Paris Policy Continues; "Incidents" In Occupied Zone Steadily Increase

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, February 14.—Official circles have been thrown into consternation by a report published here that the French intend in a few days' time to extend the blockade to German seaports. It is even said that a squadron of battlecruisers and a squadron of light cruisers have been designated for this, command ed by Admiral Dumesnil.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, February 14.—A French report from Duesseldorf asserts that discontent is spreading among the working classes of all descriptions. Unemployed Germans are applying to the French authorities for re-employment, offering to work in the mines and on the railways. This report says that Labor circles admit that the present state of affairs cannot continue. Resolutions have been passed at many meetings in favor of seeking an agreement with France.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 14.—The Matin states that, following the refusal of the municipality of Gelsenkirchen to pay the fine of 100,000,000 francs imposed on the town in connection with the holding up on Monday of the motorcar containing two French officers, General Degoutte has had the leading banking officials of the town arrested.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 13.—The English correspondents in the Ruhr describe the air as electrical. Both sides are feeling the strain. The French are nervous and the Germans very bitter.

A French patrol with bayonets fixed was clearing a crowd in Essen on Sunday night when two shots were fired. German police shielded the crowd by walking in front of the French.

After the evacuating of the guests at the Kaiserhof and Handelshof hotels yesterday the French dispersed the crowd outside, the soldiers advancing with fixed bayonets and the officers using riding whips. A machine-gun had to be fetched to complete the clearance.

Small labels are appearing on walls and in the shop windows everywhere in the Ruhr exhorting the population to obey only the German Government.

The Germans admit the impossibility of opposing the blockade of steel products.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 13.—Reuter's Agency is authorised to state that the rumors that Great Britain is on the point of intervening between France and Germany on the subject of the Ruhr are absolutely devoid of foundation.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 13.—Among the measures contemplated by the French Government in consultation with the chief of the financial organisation mission in the Ruhr, M. Schweisgut, the Temps mentions tightening of the Customs cordon and very close supervision of the coal depots in towns.

The newspapers, Mainzer Anzeiger, Mainze Volkszeitung, and Mainzer Tageblatt, have been suspended for three days.

Emmerich and Wesel were occupied by the Belgian troops without incident.

As a result of an incident today two French gendarmes were attacked by a drunken German police sergeant. They were wounded. The town of Gelsenkirchen has been fined 100,000,000 marks which must be paid by Friday.

The press announces the resumption of transport of coal, one train leaving today for Belgium, seven for France, three for Holland and one for Italy.

The 11th supplement to the Budget for 1923, providing for an average increase in the salaries of officials of 77 percent has been adopted by the German Cabinet.

THIRTEEN ROBBERS SHOT AT ARSENAL FOR 27 CRIMES

Morbidly Curious Crowd Applauds As Doomed Men Meet Death

Thirteen Chinese convicted of armed robbery in the International Settlement, French Concession and in Chinese territory, were executed on February 13 at the Arsenal under orders from General Ho Feng-lin, Military Governor of Sungkiang and Shanghai. A large crowd of morbidly curious were present and applauded the gruesome scene.

Det. Inspector Prince, of West Hongkew Station, was present as the representative of the Shanghai Police. Many of the robbers had been arrested by him.

The march of a mile being over the men were seated immediately in front of a rifle range, eight in one lot and five in the second. Only one shot was needed to kill each man, the bullet in every case entering the forehead. Death was instantaneous.

One criminal was the chauffeur who participated in robbing a wheelbarrow coolie who was conveying money to Mr. Denegri's Silk filature in Edinburgh Road in 1920. He was caught in Foochow Road with $40 in small money in the car. In an empty house in Frenchtown was found the paper in which the rest of the coin had been wrapped but close to $4,000 was never traced.

Another who was concerned in the same robbery was a charcoal and wood dealer in Jessfield Village, who had given information to the thieves as to the regular movement of the money and had fathered the plot. Another participant was a tramway man and a brass-smith.

One of the 13 shot Tuesday was a chauffeur who took an active part in a daylight robbery in North Honan Road, when money was seized and a pedestrian was shot. A man of 35 years of age, who was a member of the gang, bragged that he had been an armed robber for nearly 12 years and that some time ago he had aided in robbing a place in Pootung of $20,000.

Another artful but desperate robber found seclusion near the Thibet Road Police Station and had lived there, unsuspected, for a long time. The men who were shot at the arsenal were responsible for 25 armed robberies and two armed highway robberies.

The soldiers who fired are said to have been given $1 each as cumsha for their trouble.

Bonar Law Hints Entente May Break Because Of Ruhr

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 13.—In the House of Commons today in the debate on the Address to the Throne, the Prime Minister, Mr. Bonar Law, said that he did not know whether it would be possible for British troops to remain at Cologne. The French or the German Government could make it impossible.

That would be a great misfortune and would largely mean the end of the Entente. He still hoped that something might happen to enable Britain to intervene usefully.

The Prime Minister was convinced that fear of insecurity lay behind the French measures. Both people and statesmen wanted reparations but felt that they would not like to see Germany strong enough to pay them.

Events had turned out exactly as he (Mr. Bonar Law) feared, namely, France had got nothing from the Ruhr and had spent much in it, while by cutting the jugular vein of German industry she had done greater harm to Germany than she was suffering herself.

PROSPECTS DARK

"Now, whatever happens, I do not see bright prospects in front of us. France is committed to this policy and is bound to see it through."

Mr. Bonar Law expressed the opinion that the danger would come later and in conclusion said that, while British troops remained on the Rhine, we were in touch with the situation. It would be a great pity to see the Entente brought to an end, for that was what would happen if the troops were removed.

Although the Prime Minister hoped that something would happen to facilitate British intervention, he saw no ground for it.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, the Leader of the Opposition, declared that Europe was in a state of political and economic chaos after impossible reparations and impossible sanctions. The Allies had drifted into a policy of Imperialism and annexation.

Mr. Asquith expressed the opinion that France was imperilling the success of any reasonable effort to obtain from Germany what Germany ought to pay. The Government ought to urge France and Germany to allow the League of Nations to deal with the matter.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 13.—The King's Speech at the opening of Parliament today referring to the Ruhr, says that the Government, while feeling unable to concur or participate in the operation, are acting in such a way as not to add difficulties to the Allies.

His Majesty greatly regrets that, in spite of the conciliatoriness of the Allies and the immense concessions they are prepared to make, the Turkish delegation at Lausanne declined the Treaty on the verge of signature, and hopes that the Turkish Government, when it has received a full report of the proceedings, may still be disposed to accept the Treaty and that the opportunity, so earnestly and laboriously prepared, of rebuilding peace in the East and the stability of the future Turkish State may not be sacrificed.

The Speech welcomes the prospective settlement of the British war debt to the United States, which reflects the determination of the British to meet their obligations.

The Ministers must continuously give their attention to the serious unemployment.

The recent increase in oversea trade gives ground for confidence in the future. The Speech expresses the hope that the improvement will be continued and particularly anticipates greater development of inter-Imperial trade in co-operation with the Government of the Empire.

GERMAN TOWN FINED

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 13.—It is reported from Mayence that the intoxicated German policeman, who held up the motorcar containing two French officers at Gelsenkirchen yesterday, has died of his wounds.

Sanctions have been taken against the authors of the attack and a fine of 100,000,000 marks has been imposed on the town.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Feb. 13.—The Belgian troops arrested two Customs officials when they occupied Wesel today. The entire railway rolling-stock was removed to unoccupied Germany overnight.

Several policemen have been arrested at Emmerich for failing to salute Belgian officers.

Motion Is Heard In Tls. 100,000 Case

Mr. F. J. Schuhl made application in the Mixed Court yesterday before Assessor Scorrar and Magistrate Li for the dismissal of a petition filed by A. Landau and Company against Scherings, Limited, asking Tls. 100,000 damages. Mr. Schuhl submitted that the claim did not clearly stipulate the cause of action and the petition did not state how the figure asked was arrived at or in what way the damage came about. The case was adjourned for one week.

No More Visas To Russians Wishing To Go To U. S.

The quota for Russians entering the United States under the immigration law which limits them to three percent of the Russians already in the country is about filled, according to information received last night by United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham, and no more visas will be given to Russians by the Consulate-General here.

Notification will be made by the Consulate-General when Russian immigration again becomes permissable.

Campus Cosmetics For Washington Co-Eds

Sylvia Johnson & Dorothy Gaston.

WOMEN pharmacists of the University of Washington, at Seattle, have an advantage over their sister collegians in that they know what elements to use in the concoction of special beautifying facial cream. They are using that knowledge in a drive for funds for a woman's scholarship in pharmacy, by selling cosmetics to the other co-eds. Sylvia Johnson is having her chum, Dorothy Gaston, apply some of the facial cream they have in the college laboratory.

Peking Notes

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 14.—A group of Members of Parliament yesterday submitted a resolution to the Government to the effect that, first, the Government should forbid military interference with railway traffic; secondly, the railway directors whose mismanagement was responsible for the strike on the Peking-Hankow line should be dismissed; thirdly; the Government should recognise the workmen's right of assembly; fourthly, the families of the strikers killed or wounded should be compensated by the Government; fifthly, the Government should recognise the right of Labor to organise, which has already been proclaimed by the Government.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 14.—The Cabinet yesterday considered a telegram from the Civil Governor of Chekiang, praying that the former Anfu Minister of Finance, Mr. Li Shih-hao, should be pardoned, and also a letter from the Anfu Members of Parliament urging that Mr. Fang Shu, another member of the Anfu Party, should be pardoned. The matter will be reconsidered tomorrow and a mandate is expected to follow.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 14.—The Provincial Assembly of Fukien has sent a telegram protesting to the Government against General Sun Chuan-fang bringing in a large army to the Province, which, it states, is unnecessary in view of the cessation of trouble.

COUNCIL THANKS MARR JOHNSON FOR HIS SERVICE

Expresses High Appreciation For Work Of Retiring Commandant

The following letter of appreciation has been addressed by the Municipal Council to Colonel R. Marr Johnson, C.M.G., D.S.O., in view of his retirement as Commandant of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps:

Council Room.

Shanghai, February 8, 1923.

Sir,—In view of the approaching termination of your period of secondment by the British War Office, as Commandant of the Volunteer Corps, it is the Council's desire to place on record its very sincere appreciation of the exceptionally valuable character of the services rendered by you, and its equally sincere regret at your departure.

During your command, the Corps has made immense strides in equipment, organisation, personnel and all-round efficiency and it affords the Council unbounded satisfaction, as it must also do you, that, in relinquishing the appointment of Commandant, you do so, leaving the Corps in what is unquestionably the highest state of efficiency ever attained since its formation in 1853, and, as such, an asset to the community of incalculable value in ensuring peace and good order, as also a force that can be fully relied on to suppress disturbance and disorder should such ever unhappily occur.

It is a great pleasure, therefore, to the Council, in bidding you good-bye and "bon voyage," to tender to you its whole-hearted and appreciative thanks, and to wish you every success in the future.

Obituary

PRINCE FUSHIMI

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Feb. 14.—The State funeral of Prince Sadanaru Fushimi took place this morning. The ceremony was very impressive.

The preliminary rites were held in the Hall of Cherries of the Fushimi Mansion and were attended by the Prince's Imperial relatives. The cortege, which was over a mile in length, and included Prince Kanin and other Princes, and the Funeral Committee, passed through the streets, lined by citizens, to the Toshimagaoka Mausoleum where the last Shinto rites took place. Military and Naval detachments formed the guards of honor and the Imperial Guards lined the route.

The final rites were attended by representatives of Their Imperial Majesties and the Prince Regent, members of the Imperial House, Sir Charles Eliot, the British Ambassador, and the other Ambassadors and their suites, the Cabinet Ministers, Admiral Count Togo and other veterans and thousands of officials and prominent personages.

During the ceremony warships at Shinagawa fired a salute. All music and amusements were stopped today.

Women Win Big Victory When Two Get Court Places

(China Press Service)

Montreal, Que., Jan. 20.—Feminists of the Province of Quebec hail as a victory for their cause the appointment of two Women as commissioners of the Superior Court for the judicial districts of Montreal. The ruling is described as the first step toward admitting women to the Bar of the Province, for which a battle has been waged for many years in the Legislature.

The first women to be named commissioner are Gertrude Sheridan and Gertrude Doyle, public stenographers. The powers conferred by their appointment include the right to receive within the judicial district of Montreal affidavits which may be used in any court in any district of the province. Affidavits thus received have the same force as if they had been received in court.

The women's petition for commissionerships was rejected by Mr. Justice Campbell Lane when first presented to Superior Court here. The judge took the ground that there was no precedent for appointing women, and he declined to create one. A few days later the petition was presented again, this time to Mr. Justice MacLennan, who granted it at once.

Every session of the provincial Legislature for many years has seen the introduction of a bill to extend to women the right to engage in the practise of law in the province. The measure has always been defeated by large majorities. Women in Quebec enjoy the franchise in Canadian federal affairs, but may not vote in provincial elections.

Furbush, Serving Life Term, Writes Another Letter

Henry H. Furbush, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the United States Court for China for the murder of Richard F. Hazleton at the El Dorado Cafe two years ago, again has written to the American authorities here from Fort Leavenworth penitentiary to which he was transferred from Bilibid.

In his letter the prisoner makes a comparison of conditions at Leavenworth with those at Bilibid. His letter in part is as follows:

"I find a great difference in this prison and Bilibid. I think that their system of housing at Bilibid is exceptionally good, also the large amount of liberty one is allowed in the yard is very good, especially for one's health. Of course the system of housing prisoners as in Bilibid could hardly be put into practice here owing to the great changes in the climate.

"The officials of Bilibid gave me excellent recommendations to the officials of this prison, the recommendations were filed with my record, so I have been informed. I am working in the Power House, as a night engineer, from 4 p.m. to midnight. That speaks very well for the trust placed in me by the officials as I understand that it is not customary to place a man with a long sentence on night work right at the start. I have been on night work about a month.

"While I was at Bilibid, or rather, after I had been there for six months I was placed in charge of the general kitchen, ordering all commissary supplies and overseeing the work there. I was made a chief squad leader and received first grade compensation."

HOSPITAL GETS TLS. 762 AWARD FROM ELMONTS

Lobingier Holds American Women Here Have Equal Rights In Business

American married women in China are empowered to enter into business contracts as freely and fully as if they were unmarried, according to a judgment handed down yesterday by Judge Charles Sumner Lobingier in the United States Court for China when he gave the Shanghai Municipal Council judgment for Tls. 762.70 and costs against Mr. and Mrs. Jay Elmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmont, through their attorney, Mr. Faison of Williams, Franklin and Faison, admitted the debt of Tls. 762.70, being the balance due the Shanghai Municipal Council on Mrs. Elmont's hospital bill, but denied that Mrs. Elmont was liable, as under the laws of the District of Columbia and Alaska, which prevail in this jurisdiction, the husband is liable for the debts of his wife.

The decision of the Court is as follows:

This is an action against a husband and wife for medical service rendered to the latter at the Victoria Nursing Home, an institution supported and controlled by plaintiff. The husband answers admitting liability and confessing judgment for the full amount asked. The wife in her answer "denies that part of paragraph 2 (of the complaint) which alleges that she is indebted to plaintiff," but at the trial her counsel offered the following:

"Defendants admit the rendering to Mrs. Jay Elmont of the services alleged in the complaint and the value thereof and admit the liability of the defendant, Jay Elmont, but denies that of Mrs. Jay Elmont."

Defendants' counsel relies upon the wife's common law exemption from suit and claims that notwithstanding the Married Woman's Property Act, legislation is necessary to render her separate estate liable for family necessaries which it is contended include the present claim. But Congress has enacted that:

"Married woman shall have power to engage in any business and to contract as fully and freely as if they were unmarried."

This provision has been frequently construed by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and has been given a fairly literal interpretation. Thus it was observed in one case.

"If the appellant was unmarried there could be no question of her liability."

And the Court then proceeded to find a corresponding liability even though appellant was married. So in the case at bar if the female defendant had gone, as an unmarried woman, to this institution and requested and received the services now sued for, there could have been no question of the liability of her estate and the purpose of the provision above quoted seems to be to place her in exactly the same situation.

Again the complaint describes the defendants as "doing business as co-partners as 'Elmonts'". That description appears also on the summons and is taken up and repeated in the answer of both defendants. In several jurisdictions having statutory provisions like the above, it has been held that married women may enter into partnerships (even with their husbands) and thereby become liable for goods or services furnished the members.

Counsel contends, however, that something more is necessary than the implied promise to pay which arose from defendant's acceptance of the services and that it was necessary that the wife should have expressly charged her separate estate. That is the rule in some jurisdictions, but in this such necessity appears to be removed by another section of the same enactment which provides "every contract made by a married woman which she has the power to make shall be deemed to be made with reference to her estate," etc.

In other words the presumption which obtains in the other jurisdictions mentioned, that the wife does not bind her separate estate, seems here to be reversed and such liability is presumed unless the contrary appears.

In the present case the wife offered no evidence other than the admission above quoted and there is consequently nothing to overcome the presumption which the statute seems to impose.

On the whole we are satisfied that the legislation for which counsel contends has been actually extended to this jurisdiction and we must accordingly find that both defendants are liable for the claim in question.

It is, therefore, considered and adjudged that the plaintiff have and recover from the defendants and each of them the sum of Taels 762.70 together with costs.

Night By Night, In Every Fight, Poor Jiggs Gets Married-er And Married-er

(Special correspondence of The China Press)

New York, Jan. 8.—New York's most unique dinner party of the Christmas season was the Twelfth Night gathering at Dinty Moore's on Forty-sixth street, which was attended by a representative group from the artists' colony.

The dinner was in compliment to George McManus, creator of Jiggs, Maggie, Dinty Moore and the other characters in "Bringing Up Father."

The toastmaster of the occasion was Rudolph Clavering, the famous lecturer, on Oriental Travels, who presents many original sketches of the places he has visited and who therefore is considered a member of the artists' contingent. He traveled from his home in Tarrytown for the purpose of presiding over for the dinner. Others who attended were well known members of the colony. Each was made up to represent one of the characters in Bringing Up Father, with the exception of Dinty Moore, who, of course, attended the dinner as himself, thus doing away with the necessity for a make-up. The toastmaster, Mr. Clavering, was dressed as "Maggie." He preserved the necessary decorum with a rolling pin, but for once "Maggie" used her implement of strife on the table only.

The principal and wittiest address of the evening was made by Mr. McManus, who, like Dinty Moore, appeared without make-up and represented himself.

In introducing Mr. McManus, Mr. Clavering made reference to the visit of M. Coue to the United States.

A GOOD ACT

"M. Coue has a good act," he said, "but he has stolen the stuff of George McManus. When George created Jiggs and Maggie for us he taught us the value of laughter. I'll wager that he has cured more persons than Coue has. I'll tell you why I say that. Several years ago I was in the market place at Singapore. On the east side of the market there is a fountain with stone seats around it. They are nearly always occupied. As I approached this fountain I saw a man in native dress fairly doubled up with laughter. When I approached near enough to ascertain the cause of his merriment I found that he had secured a copy of some newspaper Sunday Magazine. He was laughing at Jiggs and Maggie. He could not read, but he knew the story just from looking at the pictures. I realised then what a great artist we have in George McManus. Any man who can make people laugh like that is performing a very definite duty in the world.

When Mr. McManus arose to reply the diners called, 'Sit down, there is no need of standing while you talk to us," but the artist continued to stand.

"I have to stand up when I talk," he began. "You see I usually sit down when I am at home. I have grown so accustomed to listening and keeping quiet while I am sitting down that now I have to stand on my feet whenever I want to talk."

The diners gave him his first laugh.

"Now about this Coue stuff. I don't know where he got his idea, but he found a good one when he secured. His line goes, 'Day by day, in every way, I am growing better and better.' You will too if you keep on saying it. But you don't even have to do that. If you will just stand on Broadway any afternoon and repeat Coue's name like a pigeon would say it—something like this, 'Coue-e-e-e, Coue-e-e-e, Coue-e-e-e—in about ten minutes you will feel like a bird. Everybody who hears you will know that you are Cuckoo.

BOUND TO DO GOOD

"I am glad Coue is in America. He will do good. He has an old act but a new method. Everytime anyone has adopted his line he has accomplished a great deal with it. You know once they used to put a magnet to the part of the body that had a pain and pull the pain right out of the patient. That did a lot of good and cured thousands of persons. Then Professor Mesmer came along and he was so successful with his cures that the word 'mesmerism' has taken a permanent place in our language. We have had miracle men, healers, psychologists, thousands who carried buckeyes and potates for rheumatism, millions who carried the foot of a graveyard rabbit to ward off trouble and thousands more who carried a piece of burned carbon as a cure for lumbago.

"Now the point is that all of these things are good. They really do cure when they are first discovered. All of them may last about ten or twelve years and after that time they will not cure any thing. For instance no one would now think of using a magnet to pull a pain out of the body, and yet it really and truly was one of the established cures, and wonders were performed with magnets.

"Now here is a remarkable thing. It would seem that when a cure became known as a fake those who had been cured by it would have a relapse, but nothing of the sort happens. The method of cure is temporary but the recovery of the patient is permanent. Therefore my advice to you is to take up Coue at once, because in just a year or two he will not be able to cure you at all.

"So don't roast Coue to me. I am for him. I am going to take him up myself. As for Jiggs he doesn't need the cure. He has one himself. His line goes, 'Night by night, in every fight, I am getting married-er and married-er.'"

MRS. HOFFMAN DIES IN HOSPITAL OF SMALLPOX

Recent Arrival From Honolulu Is First Victim Of Year

Smallpox claimed its first victim of the year Tuesday night when Mrs. Adeline Hoffman, who recently arrived in Shanghai from Honolulu, died at the Isolation Hospital.

Mrs. Hoffman came to Shanghai six weeks ago with the intention of going into business here, but became ill while looking for a location. Before coming here she played special parts in the movies at Hollywood, and in Honolulu gained a considerable reputation as a singer. She sang for one of the first radio concerts broadcasted by THE CHINA PRESS and Radio Corporation of China three weeks ago.

Mrs. Hoffman is survived by her mother and father in Honolulu who have been notified of her death.

At the present time there are said to be four or five cases of smallpox in Shanghai, mostly from ships touching here, but this is one of the first, if not the first death reported since the bad epidemic a year ago.

Woman Brought Into Mixed Court Says She's American

A young foreign woman giving the name of Miss Dorothy Li and claiming American citizenship, appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday before Assessor Mead and Magistrate Loh on a charge of being intoxicated and acting in a disorderly manner in a local hotel.

The defendant had been denied recognition by United States Commissioner N. E. Lurton but repeated her claims to American citizenship in the Mixed Court, stating that she came out to China from San Francisco the first of the year and declaring that her ancestors were all Americans. Owing to her condition she was ordered examined by a physician and the case was remanded to come before the American Assessor this morning. In the afternoon Inspector Wheeler of the Mixed Court took the matter up with American Assessor King, securing the necessary Court guarantee to send the young woman to hospital. Mr. King took the record of the case and stated that he would go into the question of the defendant's nationality.

Vitamin A

"Cod Liver Oil is About 250 Times as Potent in Food Value as Butter"

The Spatula, Boston, December, 1921

From the Journal of the American Medical Association.

WHENCE COMES THE VIRTUE OF COD LIVER OIL?

The food value of cod liver oil, long recognised by the medical profession, is now known to be chiefly dependent on its richness in that vitamin distinguished by the first letter of the alphabet. But where does the cod get his "vitamin A"? No animal, be he land or marine, can make vitamins. He must get them from vegetation, or from other animals who have thus obtained them. An editorial writer in The Journal of the American Medical Association tells us that the primary source of vitamin for the cod is to be found in sea-weed and diatoms. The oil obtained from its liver is thus merely a convenient storage battery for this substance and not at all the factory that produces it. We read in the paper named above:

"One of the interesting features of vitamins is the apparently well substantiated fact that they are not synthesised in the organism of the higher animals or man. Consequently, the latter are dependent on extraneous sources for these dietary essentials. It is obviously of great importance to know the origin of any product that is indispensable to human or animal welfare. In the case of vitamin A it has become evident that the green plant plays a significant part in the production of the food factor, just as the vegetable kingdom has long been known to synthesise other essentials of diet which the animal organism can not construct. Studies have indicated that vitamin A can actually be produced by the green plant from inorganic sources.

"It thus becomes clear how the higher land animals and man draw their supplies of vitamin A directly or otherwise from green plants, since their own tissues seem to lack the power to manufacture it. But how about the marine animals which appear in many cases to be particularly rich in vitamin A? Investigation has demonstrated that among their sources of foods the marine algae share with land plants the power to synthesise it.

"And most recently the production of large amounts of vitamin A by pure cultures of diatoms in sterilised sea-water has been discovered. Diatoms are an important source of nutriment for many marine forms, which, in turn, serve to supply food sources for man. An instructive parallel may be drawn between the dependence of land animals on fresh green leaves and that of marine animals on the synthetic activity of the marine flora for their supplies of vitamin A. Cod liver oil and many other comparable products of marine origin are notably rich in vitamin A. The fishes which furnished these tissue oils live on a great variety of food.

"Although it would be an almost insuperable task to demonstrate an actual transference of vitamin A right through from a diatom to its final location in the liver of the cod, it would appear that we are justified in assuming that such transference does indeed take place by relying on the fact that as yet synthesis of this dietary factor by an animal organism has not been demonstrated, whereas such synthesis is readily carried out by certain plants, both marine and terrestrial. Furthermore, the marine algae represent the fundamental food supply of all marine animals."

IT IS A CURIOUS FACT that the oil preseed from the livers of cod that run to the Lofoten islands on the Norwegian coast is of much higher medicinal value than the oil produced from the same species of fish that spawn on the Newfoundland Banks, on the other side of the Atlantic. In all probability the explanation would be that the Norwegian cod thrive on a richer feeding ground—green sea-weed particularly rich in the Vitamin principle, without which growth and life cannot be maintained. (Vide annexed article from Medical Journal).

ONLY THE PUREST selected Norwegian (Lofoten) cod liver oil is used in the preparation of SCOTT'S Emulsion, our formula calling for 40 per cent., and this is why the original Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, Scott's, with the Fishman Trademark, has maintained such high standard since first introduced in 1874,—49 years ago.

PLAIN COD LIVER OIL in considerable proportions often passes out undigested. But when SCOTT'S Emulsion is administered practically every drop is absorbed because of the unique Scott process of manufacture.

THIS PROCESS of grinding the oil, used since 1874, assures perfect and permanent disintegration of the oil particles and emulsifies the oil inseparably with the tonic hypophosphites. The microscope shows a uniform aggregation of minute globules that never coalesce, never become lumpy.

THE PRACTICAL RESULT of the Scott process is perfect assimilability, so the patient has full value of every drop. No other emulsion has such high percentage of this Vitamin carrier—and no other is made by the Scott process.

Indication

Scott's Emulsion is of value in malnutrition attending convalescence from debilitating diseases such as Influenza. Constructive metabolic processes are stimulated by its administration and its use is suggested in those wasting diseases the first object of treatment of which is to build up nutrition.

Hence it is specific in treating:

Debility	Pulmonary and Bronchial
Anaemia	Affections—patients of Tu-
Marasmus	bercular Tendency-Weakly
Scrofula	and Undeveloped Children
Scurvy	Convalescents after Fevers-
Beriberi	Teething Troubles. Rickets
Coughs, Colds	After Operations, Expectant
Throat	and Nursing Mothers.
Ailments

When Cod Liver Oil Treatment is Indicated therefore, Discriminating Practitioners Always Prescribe SCOTT'S EMULSION, with the Fishman Trademark, which is Obtainable wherever there is a Dispensary.

EUROPEAN MAILS BEING DISPATCHED ON TWO STEAMERS

Two mails for Europe will close today and are to be dispatched on the Angers and Khiva today and Saturday respectively. Mail from Europe arrived on the Kashmir, which docked at the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf early yesterday afternoon.

Ordinary matter for the Angers is to close at 8 o'clock this morning and registered at 7. Both registered and ordinary mail to go on the Khiva should be posted before 9 o'clock tonight, and parcels before 2 p.m. The tender with outgoing passengers for the Angers will leave the French mail jetty at 10 o'clock this morning.

The Khiva which arrived from Japan ports yesterday morning, will sail for London next Saturday, and the tender with outbound passengers will leave the Customs jetty at 10:30 o'clock that morning. Heavy baggage should be delivered to the lighter at the Customs jetty between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Taking mail for Honolulu, California and the Southern States, the President Wilson will sail for San Francisco at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, and is due to arrive there via Kobe, Yokohama and Honolulu on March 8. The liner is to dock at the China Merchants Central Wharf from Hongkong between 2 and 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The President Jackson, taking the next mail for the States and Canada, will leave Shanghai next Sunday and is due at Seattle on March 6. The Taiyo Maru of T. K.K. is to leave Woosung for San Francisco this evening, and the tender with outgoing passengers and baggage will leave the Customs jetty at 2 p.m. Incoming passengers from the steamer are expected to land about 9:30 in the morning.

Mail from America and Honolulu is due on the President Lincoln next Wednesday, and the Tenyo Maru will arrive off Woosung from America on Saturday. The Lincoln is due at Yokohama today.

The President Jefferson which docked at the China Merchants Central Wharf last Tuesday, will sail for Hongkong and Manila at 10 o'clock this morning and is to take a heavy passenger list from this port.

At The Carlton

Mae Murray has the stellar role in "Peacock Alley," which opens at the Carlton Theater tomorrow. The story is written around the life of Cleo, a Parisian dancer who falls in love with a small town American youth and finds her husband's people scandalised when she goes back to his home, resulting in the couple seeking their fortunes in New York. It gives Mae Murray unusual opportunity to appear in many gorgeous gowns and artistic costumes among elaborate settings.

Among the notable cast which aids Miss Murray in interpreting this romance of two countries is Monte Blue in the leading role, Edmund Lowe, W. J. Ferguson, Anders Randolf, William Tooker, Howard Land, William Frederick, M. Durant, and Jeffrys Lewis.

A matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m., the only matinee of this production.

By special request a matinee will be given on Sunday at 3 p.m. for the screening of Jackie Coogan in his latest picture "My Boy" and on the same program will be shown "The Battle of Jutland."

How to Prevent Seasickness
"KIRBY'S Sea-Sick Cure," a Simple, Safe Remedy, Stops All Motion Nausea and Sickness.
It is now admitted by doctors that the most effective remedy for seasickness, trainsickness, climber's dizziness, aerial nausea and all forms of motion sickness, is "KIRBY'S Sea-Sick Cure." The most severe tests have shown it to be infallible. It produces no depression or disagreeable after-effects. It is free from opiates, bromides, chloral and noxious drugs. It stops vomiting and nausea almost instantly, stops the headaches which usually follow, and permits the patient to eat freely and continue the voyage in comfort.
Sold by all Dispensaries at $1.50 a box of 10 doses.

Owners Of Ricshas Protest Removal Of License Limit

The Municipal Council has received letters from 37 ricsha owners and the Committee of Foreign and Chinese ricsha owners protesting against the intention to abolish the present limitation of licenses, as recently announced.

Today's Municipal Gazette states that a lengthy report has been received from the police dealing further with the position, and therefore the Council is delaying a reply to the communications.

REMINGTON TYPEWRITER PROGRESS

Forty-eighth Year of the Organization's Business Life is Made Memorable by Announcement of the Improved Self Starting Remington for Office Use, and the New Remington Portable.

Within the last few months the Remington Typewriter Company has made two noteworthy contributions to typewriter progress.

First, is the improved Self Starting Remington, the sum of 48 years of experience in the manufacture of writing machines. Second, is the wonderful Remington Portable which fits in a case only 4 inches high and is especially designed for the traveling man, field engineer, author, minister, school boy and girl and in fact anyone who has casual writing to do.

The crowning triumph o... ing Remington is the quality of its work. It is not only beautiful in originals and carbons but it is consistently good under all circumstances. The checks against every kind of mis-operation are so complete that the machine seems bound to turn out good work no matter how operated. The improved Self Starting Remington is a machine for the expert but not the expert alone. It is certain to have exceptional popularity with the student, beginner and the novice, because it helps them to turn out good, acceptable work from the very outset.

The fact that the Remington Portable Typewriter has the standard keyboard has already insured its exceptional popularity. It has the same number of printing keys, same size, same arrangement, as any standard machine. This means that from the operator's standpoint it is exactly like the standard machine. The user of a standard machine has nothing new to learn and the user of a Remington Portable has nothing to unlearn.

Changes in the type bar of the improved Self Starting Remington and its adjustments are numerous, including a slotted segment, anvil and type guide. The action of the type bar is scientifically balanced.

Already many thousands of these latest Remingtons have been sold and everywhere the buyers are enthusiastic. All agree that the Improved Self Starting Remington and the Remington Portable set new standards of efficiency in the two most important fields of typewriter service.

Remington Portable
A marvel of compactness. Fits in a case four inches high. Has Standard Keyboard, and many other standard features.
THIS is the portable machine you have been waiting for—with Standard Keyboard—no shifting for figures. Small and handy, but strong, sturdy and dependable, like every Remington.
Carry it with you wherever you go and use it for all your writing. Win the appreciation of your personal and business friends by sending them clean, beautifully typed letters—it pays! This intimate little companion will save your time, save your dollars, and lighten the burden of all your writing tasks.

BLUES FORFEIT GAME CARDED TONIGHT AT 'Y'

Owing to depletion of their team, the Blues will be obliged to forfeit the game scheduled for this evening with the Bearcats at the Y.M.C.A.

Coulcher and Goldman of the Blues quintet will be out of town, going to Hongkong, while Krygsman has been transferred from Shanghai to Hankow. These losses leave the Blues, even calling on all their reserves, unable to put a full team on the floor.

A Sports Editorial

MRS. MALLORY'S DAUNTLESS DETERMINATION

No matter what may be the result of her quest, be it victory or be it defeat, all admirers of the spirit of true sportsmanship and dauntless determination in the face of previous defeats must pay tribute to Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, our national woman lawn tennis champion, who announced her intention recently of making still another attempt to win the world's championship at Wimbledom next June.

On each of her previous visits to Wimbledon Mrs. Mallory has advanced closer to her great ambition. Last year, after working her way through the greatest field of women players ever gatherd together, she reached the final round at Wimbledon, there to be defeated by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the defending title holder, who won the honors for four successive years.

In 1921, upon the occasion of Mlle. Lenglen's visit to this country, Mrs. Mallory conquered the French girl in the national championship tourney at Forest Hills, yet she will never feel that her self-imposed task has been really accomplished until she wins the world's honors at Wimbledon.

On her coming trip to Europe and England Mrs. Mallory is planning even more thorough preparation than on any of her previous visits. Leaving this country in February, she will compete in the tournaments along the Riviera, in the South of France, in Belgium, Roehampton, Boeckenham and Wimbledon. Whether she will oppose Mlle. Lenglen in any of these preliminary tournaments to the world's championship depends largely upon Mlle. Suzanne herself. The French girl has always been entered at Monte Carlo and in the French hard court championship, and it is to be hoped she will do the same thing this coming spring. In any event Mrs. Mallory will be ready for the great test, and the good wishes of all America will be with her in her courageous crusade. Such unfaltering determination deserves nothing less than victory. —New York Tribune.

TEST MATCH IS DRAW; 10,000 AT FOURTH GAME

TO ARRIVE LATE

Mr. H. F. Marshall To Go As Manager; Fans Make Trip

The Shanghai Football Association Interport football team will leave for Hongkong at 10 o'clock today on the Admiral-Oriental Line steamer President Jefferson, arriving at Hongkong on Saturday.

Owing to the President Jefferson being a day behind schedule, and a consequent late arrival at Hongkong, it is not certain that the team will arrive in time to play the Interport match on Saturday as arranged, unless the team proceeds almost immediately to the football ground after landing.

Mr. C. W. Hampson, Honorary Secretary of the Shanghai Football Association, informs us that he has arranged to have the result of the match cabled to him immediately it is known at Hongkong, and that he will be pleased to pass on the information to anyone interested who cares to ring him up at his private address (C. 7876) between 8.30 p:m. and 9:30 p.m. on Saturday. He requests us to state that inquiries should be made only between the times stated.

The following is the list of players proceeding to Hongkong as members of the Interport team:

Goal: A. H. Remedios; Backs: E. Turner and J. A. Quayle. Halves: G. T. Crawford, E. F. Mears and F. C. H. Ollerdessen. Forwards: W. E. Dailey, A. S. Phillips, L. Goldman, L. J. Coulcher and T. W. R. Wilson. Reserves: J. R.

How Coburn Whipped Giants By Using His Brain In Ring

BY JAMES J. CORBETT

Joe Coburn was one of the fighters of nearly a century ago and a man that left behind a memory that was respected by everybody connected with the fighting game. Coburn was a man that wasn't endowed with such a terrible amount of skill, but he possessed a stout heart, which won him many friends and admirers. The only time Coburn didn't show up well was in his memorable battle with Jem Mace in Canada, when neither struck a blow. Aside from that ridiculous affair, Coburn held his own with every man.

Coburn wasn't a big man, as he only stood five feet nine inches. This proves that height is not an absolute necessity for a heavyweight pugilist as long as a man possesses a real pugnacious spirit. This is borne out by our present champion, Jack Dempsey, who is not a very big man, standing around six feet. Again a glance back and we can see that a man shouldn't be above the normal stature to succeed in the prize ring. A good cool head, plenty of courage and endurance and a man of Coburn's build need not worry about his chances in fighting for the championship.

Coburn was a stayer, as he demonstrated when he and Ned Price fought for three hours and twenty minutes, and only stopped when the shades of night enveloped them in darkness. This fight was said to have gone 160 rounds, which would be something marvelous in these times. In the days of old a round terminated when a man either was knocked to the ground or dropped to escape punishment. Rather a crude manner in comparison to the present rules.

Coburn's most famous scrap was with Mike McCoole down in Maryheight and when McCoole was a very big man and with his powerful frame carried tremendous power both in hitting and roughing. This was well known to Coburn and he fought cautiously right from the start. When McCoole tried to rush and drive Coburn around the latter stepped aside and let the big man use up all his energy and strength. At the same time Coburn managed to send home some telling blows that hurt his big antagonist.

This method of procedure slowly reduced McCoole to Coburn's weight and when McCoole was weary, Coburn started in with a strong offensive, and after sixty-seven rounds forced the giant to acknowledge defeat. The big man was carried from the ring in a pitiable condition, while Coburn's friends lifted him on their shoulders and went on their way celebrating. Their idol had turned an apparent defeat into a wonderful victory, so they felt it was proper to rejoice. Coburn wasn't unmarked, for he stopped many a blow, but his strategy aided him to lodge the extra hard ones.

This fight bears out my contention about height not being such a tremendous advantage. Coburn wasn't very brilliant in execution, but was a quicker thinker than his rival. By his use of his brain he made things equal and then it was no effort for him to triumph. And it can be done nowadays by any man in any walk of life. Use your brain whether in the ring or outside and you can overcome big obstacles, just as Joe Coburn did when he fought Mike McCoole.

MODERN VIKINGS TO HOIST SAILS ON SATURDAY

Five Shanghai Men To Make Adventurous Trip In Small Craft

Sometime after sun-up on Saturday five Shanghai lovers of the great open sea spaces will set sail in a 27-ton yacht on an adventurous voyage of 16,000 miles that will eventually land them in their homeland, Denmark.

In anticipation of the adventure the five modern Vikings, Mr. H. J. Nanman, Mr. P. N. Jensen, Mr. A. Ingwersen, Mr. H. Kjaer and Mr. E. Haugeland, will hold a reception on board their craft for the officers and members of the Shanghai Yacht Club, of which they are members, on Friday at 11 a.m. The Vice-Commodore of the Club has arranged to have a launch leave the Customs jetty at 10:30 for the convenience of the guests.

At the reception Club Burgees and letters of introduction to Yacht Clubs at ports of call en route will be presented to the daring quintette by the Club.

The yacht, which has been named the "Shanghai," was built by a Chinese builder in Yangtszepoo to the order of the sailors, and is 47 feet long with a 16-foot beam. It will carry a clear deck and yawl rigging and a small 10-horse power engine for entering and leaving ports.

The yachtsmen were formerly on the Great Northern Telegraph Company's cable ship, the "Store Nordiske," and have planned the trip for several months. They have only recently settled their affairs in Shanghai so that they can get away for the trip—which may take a year—as they are in no hurry and merely on pleasure bent.

Giant Airplane Of France Armed With A '75' Gun

(China Press Service)

Paris, Jan. 20.—One of the most remarkable airplanes ever constructed has recently been added to the French Air Service.

It is a veritable armored car of the skies with the armament of a fort. The machine is built entirely of steel and in addition to the ordinary machine guns, it is equipped with one of the famous French "75" field-guns. The plane carries a supply of 50 shells for this gun, and it weighs ten tons. The craft has passed the builders tests and has been delivered to the airdrome at Villa Courblay.

U. S. Government Broadcasts 8,000 Words Per Day

Radio telegraphy, although an invaluable factor for several years in receiving and sending data on weather to and from ships, was not recognised until recently as a medium for the general dissemination of forecasts, writes Prof. C. F. Marvin, chief of the United States Weather Bureau, in his report to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

The use of radio by the bureau throughout the country was limited because of the necessity of using code, he explains. "With the introduction of radio telephony, which makes it possible for anyone to receive the messages in spoken words, the broadcasting of information over the interior has increased enormously," he declares. A year ago the daily forecasts of the Weather Bureau were broadcasted from 12 stations in seven states, principally by radio telegraphy, whereas on July 1, 1922, 98 stations in 35 states were carrying daily weather forecasts and warnings chiefly by radio telephony.

All broadcasts are sent out from Governmental, commercial and private stations, at no expense to the bureau. A special wave of 485 meters has been assigned by the Department of Commerce, and to avoid interference and duplication, only two stations in a city are licensed this valuable meteorological information. The broadcasts are supplied the radio stations from neighboring meteorological stations by telephone. Undoubtedly the service could be placed on more efficient basis and materially extended, the chief of the bureau states, if funds were available for telegraphing information to radio stations not now included in the system, and engaging more employes.

Another important accomplishment in radio work during the past year was the inauguration of a program of broadcasting the twice daily forecasts, cold wave, frost and other warnings and information issued for the States lying in the Chicago and Washington forecasts districts. From April to November a summary of weather conditions as they affect the crops during the week preceding is also included. This service began in June, 1922. Radio-telegraphy and high wavelengths are utilized, as telegraphy is more reliable for long range transmission. The radio receiving stations, equipped for high wave reception, receive a direct service thereby, and local radiophone stations are enabled to broadcast for their district. Material extensions were also made during the year in the radio bulletin service for the benefit of marine and aviation interests.

In order to get an idea of the immensity of the weather broadcasting carried on daily, an estimate of the number of words transmitted daily by the governmental stations was fixed at 8,000. A reduction is made on Sundays when approximately 6,000 words are handled. At one Naval Station, Altena, Ill., approximately 150,000 words are handled during the lake shipping season between April 15 and December 15: this is one of the largest traffic schedules of the whole system of 98 stations.

BALL TOMORROW TO AID FOUNDING OF ART SCHOOL

There are at present in Shanghai a number of Russian artists, sculptors and architects, about twenty of whom are forming an artistic - sculptural - architectural studio "Icar."

In order to raise the necessary funds for the organisation of this enterprise, a concert-ball and exhibition will be held on Friday, February 16, at the Cercle Sportif Francais, the net proceeds of which will be used to fit out a studio, workshops and a School of Fine Arts.

There has never before been such a school in Shanghai and a venture of such a cultural nature should find support among residents of Shanghai and lovers of the fine arts.

The Art Studio will undertake the following work: portraits, oil painting and pastel, executed by Madame I. A. Karsnitzki who has already acquired a reputation in the Far East, having painted a number of successful portraits in Shanghai; sceneries, copying of pictures, aquarelle painting on silk, painting of costumes for masquerades and stage, artistic theatrical decoration and paintings on walls and ceilings.

The Studio will also undertake to do various sculptural work, such as portraits in bas relief, busts, statues and monuments, also internal art decoration of homes and the making of fireplaces of artificial marble.

Will Allow Smoking In Olympic Theater

Permission for smoking to be allowed in the Olympic and Carter Road Theaters has been granted by the Municipal Council, according to announcement in today's Municipal Gazette.

The application was made by the Ramos Company and the Fire Department reported that in view of the fireproof nature of the buildings there was no objection.

POPE AIDS LOTTERY

(China Press Service)

Rome, Jan 7.—For the first time since the fall of the temporal power in 1870, Pope Pius and King Victor Emmanuel both have directly participated in the same enterprise.

They each have sent gifts to the lottery for raising funds with which to carry on the anti-blasphemy campaign.

BEGAN WHEN A GIRL

Neglect of symptoms which first became apparent when she was emerging from childhood into womanhood has caused many a girl long years of suffering in later life. Such was the case with Mrs. Mabel Johnston, an American lady residing at 67 Bennington Street, East Boston, Mass., who fortunately ultimately found the help she needed in Dr. Williams' pink pills.

"My sickness began when I was a girl," relates Mrs. Johnston. "Overstudy and lack of outdoor exercise caused a breakdown in my health, and I never knew what it was to be as strong as most of the girls of my acquaintance. I was pale and so nervous that it seemed as though I should fly to pieces. I suffered from headaches a great deal of the time and didn't sleep well. I lost flesh and strength and my appetite was poor.

"When I was a young woman a friend recommended Dr. Williams' pink pills and she was so sure that they would help me that I got a supply of the pills and began to take them. They helped me in much shorter time than I had expected, for I had been ill so long. My appetite improved almost at once. Gradually my strength returned and I gained in weight and felt better in every way. I became less nervous and rarely have a headache now."

Dr. Williams' pink pills are sold by all druggists or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai at $1.50 per bottle, $8 for six, post free. Equally good for men.

Cotton Market Steady Despite European Mess

(Reuter's Service)

New York, January 19.—The predicted 30-cent-cotton was about a cent nearer at the close of this week than it was last Friday, May contracts having sold at practically 28¼c on a strong general buying movement, which included both speculative and trade interests. Although there has been considerable nervousness over European conditions, the market has been sustained by the more favorable trade advices from Manchester, the continuance of the Southwestern dry spell, and the strong domestic cotton goods markets.

A revival in British trade is considered doubly important under present conditions; first, because it cannot continue long without sending British importers into the raw cotton markets; and second, because it indicates that prices are not yet high enough to check the world's consumption. Already, reports are reaching the local market of a demand in the Southern markets from British buyers. Offerings of spot cotton are limited, and it is quite probable that any material expension in the demand, from any source, would quickly be followed by fresh advance in the actual.

Liverpool cables received here today stated that Russian buyers were purchasing spot cotton in the English market, for the first time since the war, suggesting a revival in the Russian textile industry. Improved demand from India has chiefly accounted for the better Manchester business, although some orders are being received from Germany, where the textile industry is being hard hit by the fuel shortage, due to the taking over of the Ruhr district coal mines by the French.

Trade interests are becoming concerned over the mildness of the winter in the cotton States, and particularly the lack of winter rainfall in Texas, for unless Texas receives a very heavy winter rain, it is shown from experience that the State as a rule does not produce a good crop. The mild winter assures a large crop of weevils next summer, The exodus of negro labor continues, attracted by the higher pay of the town and factory. It is estimated by one authority that during the year 1922 close to 50,000 negroes left the Yazoo Delta alone.

On the other hand, Mr. Clarence Ousley, a former assistant Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, declares that with cotton at 20 or 25 cents there will be found ample labor supply; that weather rather than boll weevil is the controlling factor in production, and that the world situation is too uncertain to justify an assumption that the world consumption of cotton will continue to be as large as last year. Mr. Ousley points out that during the war years of 1917 and 1918, American farmers greatly increased their acreage, despite a greatly diminished labor supply, and gave the land satisfactory cultivation. He believes that continuing good prices for cotton during the next three months will attract men to farming who would seek other employment if cotton were low, and he believes it quite certain that the cotton area in Western Texas and Western Oklahoma will be considerably extended in the due course of development in those comparatively new regions.

The more general opinion in the trade is, however, that unless the weevil is held in check by the application of poison or of new cultural methods, it will be impossible to raise anything like a full yield of cotton; and should the acreage be materially increased, there is likely to be heavy abandonment before the season ends. The average cotton man seems of the opinion that a moderate acreage, well cared for, will produce best results this year, with normal weather conditions.

Sentiment in the trade continues very bullish, and predictions of 35-cent cotton are becoming more general. The daily disposition of cotton gives color to the belief that the end-season statistical positions will be one of the strongest ever seen, and that the early movement of new crop cotton will not weigh heavily on the market.

In case the successful bidder announces his inability to supply the timber or fails to call at the Administration's Office for the signing of a contract within the stated period after the announcement of selection of tender, his deposit made at the time of tendering is forfeited.

Tenders must be signed, sealed with sealing wax and marked on outside of envelope "Tender For Oregon Logs" and addressed to the Managing Director, Tientsin-Pukow Railway Administration, Tientsin, the same must reach the Administration before noon of the 21st day of February, 1923 and will be opened at three o'clock on the same day.

No tender will be entertained unless presented within the time stated and made on the Forms supplied by the Administration. The Administration does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender and reserves the right to divide the order into lots.

Tientsin, 7th February, 1923. (sd.) SUN FUNGTSAO,
Managing Director.

Asia Banking Corporation

February 14, 1923

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 3-16d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 63⅞ cents and the London-New York cross rate declined to 468½. Our official Sterling rate here today was dropped to 3-0, the Gold Dollar rate to 70¼, the Yen rate raised to 69 and the other rates changed accordingly.

Our market here today was firm for near delivery and easy for forward. There were good sellers at all times of Cash Sterling at 3-1⅛ and of Gold Dollars at 72½.

Some business for cash was done as high as 3-1⅛ in Sterling and 73 in Gold Dollars. There were, however, always buyers at these rates with sellers at the lower quotation.

There were sellers of Sterling at 3-0½ for March and 3-0⅝ for April with buyers ⅛d. higher. There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 71½ for March and 71¼ for April with buyers ¼ point higher.

Banks were quoting 3-2 and 74 for Sterling and Gold Dollar bills for near delivery and 3-1¼ and 73¼ for subsequent deliveries. India sold silver in London yesterday and the market there as well as in New York is reported as being steady.

French Navy Plans Involve Big Outlay

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 13.—The Matin states that the Minister of Marine, M. Raiberti, is completing a naval program providing for new construction in 20 years of 700,000 tons, including 60,000 tons each of submarines and seaplane-carriers.

No battleships will be constructed in the first eight years but only light craft, including 6 cruisers, 35 torpedo boats and 34 submarines at a cost of 2,400,000,000 francs.

Bradstreet's Report On U. S. In 1922

The following is the report of business conditions in the United States during 1922 made by Bradstreet's:

Nineteen-twenty-two may be properly styled "a year of fulfillment," in that its early promise of being a "fair" year in trade and industry was abundantly verified. It was irregular enough, including periods of belated liquidation of previous years' troubles, of apparent downward reactions alike in sentiment, in production and in prices, and although business in most lines was conducted at a much higher level of values than in the preceding year, it is probable that the margin of profit was slimmer than expected. Prices of commodities, some few farm products excepted, continuing the improvement begun in midsummer of 1921, ruled higher all around, this being true in other countries than this, by the way.

Production generally expanded over the preceding year's aggregates, in some instances new high records being set up, and trade volume was undoubtedly larger than in 1921. Retail trade proved better than expected, considering the claimed reduction of purchasing power on the part of the agricultural interests. Throughout the year collections appeared rather backward and never averaged better than fair with slowness marked and long continued in many sections.

MUCH GAIN SHOWN

Many measures of movement showed gains over 1921, although but few exceeded those of some earlier flush years. Following two years of liquidation, the progress made, as a whole, was encouraging, and a good normal level was reached in many lines. Frozen credits were pretty well melted, but the record number of failures and next to largest volume of liabilities ever recorded were evidenced alike of continuing strain in many lines of business and of cumulative effects of past mistakes, over-buying, under-consumption and other evils revealed by the slump following after-war inflation.

By and large, the year will probably be remembered as a year of improvement (though some of this was rather painful progress) in most lines, and, all things considered, a far from unsatisfactory twelve months.

A number of big features stand out prominently in a review of the past year. As not uncommon in other years of readjustment, it was characterised by severe labor troubles. Over 1,000,000 men voluntarily abandoned their work, the bulk of these in protest against reduced wages, and the biggest strike, that of the coal miners, proved successful. Despite the disorganisation that flowed from this and the railway shopmen's strikes, the latter a failure to all appearances, it was a wonderful year in industry. For the first time in history, it was claimed to have been demonstrated that there was not enough manual workers to go around, this latter development a heritage of war and later of law-restricted immigration. This was in striking contrast with the year before, when 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 people were reported either displaced or idle.

PREVENT WAGE DEFLATION

Thus fortified in this position the labor unions, as their chief spokesman announced, prevented the often predicted deflation of wages. So strong was the country financially, however, and so exigent the demand for all kinds of supplies, this including housing, that business and industry both made wonderful progress for an after-depression year, although industrial workers, it was frequently claimed, were the chief beneficiaries of the year's operations. How severely construction of all kinds, but particularly of dwellings, had been restricted during the war period, was proved by the unexampled volume of expenditure in filling this vacuum.

Several times throughout the year prediction that the housing supply had reached or passed demand was proved erroneous. Never before in the country's history also, was there such an output of that one-time termed luxury, the automobile. Continuing the immense investment buying demand of the latter part of 1921, the bond markets, despite reactions due to advances in money rates, did a new high record volume of business. Liberty bonds reached par in midyear and the Victory notes were refunded.

STOCK MARKET REACTS

The stock market, which had risen quite steadily from the summer of 1921, reacted in the autumn of 1922, losing some of the advance. Sales exceeded both 1921 and 1920. New enterprises floated compared with 1921, but did not equal recent previous years. A veritable snowstorm of stock dividends were issued, totaling in excess of $1,500,000,000.

Foreign trade, and particularly export business, apparently affected by the unsettled state of business and politics in Europe, sagged early and proved discouragingly slow in expanding, although November exports, swelled by cotton shipments, were the largest since March, 1921. Disorganisation in the exchanges was visible at times, but British currency later made a notable recovery to almost par.

The passing and going into effect of a new tariff was a notable event but the expansion in import trade in anticipation of this was smaller than expected. Crops, with few exceptions, were good, in some instances of record size, and total values, affected by generally higher levels of quotations, were better than in 1921, but little more than half those of 1919.

Foreign demand for our foodstuffs, but particularly for our wheat, proved disappointing until rather late in the past year, largely owing to the competition at lower prices of our northern neighbor, Canada, which had a close-to-record crop of high quality. Part of this was undoubtedly due to the congestion in the late summer and early autumn on our railways, mainly due to the coal and shopmen's strikes, which prevented prompt marketing.

DECREASE IN EXPORTS

Many other staple lines of export showed heavy decreases, and exports as a whole were the smallest since 1915. At various times during the year, believers in high prices cited numerous advances as beneficial and stimula-

Blood Poisoning

Yet Another Grand Recovery

Our Portrait is of Mr. WILLIAM HARBORNE, of 6, Railway Road, Perry Bar, Birmingham, England, who writes:

"About two years ago I met with rather a bad accident. My arm was cut severely, and I had to have it stitched at the hospital. This caused me six weeks' absence from work, and after resuming my duties for one week I broke out all over my body with huge Boils. Again I went to the Hospital, and was treated for Blood Poisoning; this happened on three successive occasions, until I began to think I should never be cured. Then I gave Clarke's Blood Mixture a trial, and the first bottle or two seemed to be driving out the poison, so I persevered, and after taking ten bottles I was cured. It is now over twelve months since I left off taking your Clarke's Blood Mixture, and I have seen no signs of any further blood disorder."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious.

The "Gold Cure"

AUSTIN Harrison, distinguished editor of The English Review, has hit upon a scheme for taking care of the depreciated currencies of Europe, and especially of Germany. In his January issue he says:

"Could men and nations be ruled scientifically, the European credit problem would present no difficulties. Lord Rothermere could with his £40,000,000 subscription, on gold, buy in the entire German national war debt of £10,000,000,000, and re-start Germany tomorrow. In a week America, if she used her gold instead of hoarding it, could with £400,000,000 (gold) buy in practically all the depreciated currencies of Europe, burn the paper, and start out all Europe, minus debts, on a prosperous life of plenty. If Messrs. Gordon Selfridge took Austria, Lord Rothermere Germany, Lord Beaverbrook Greece and Turkey, Lord Leverhulme the Balkans, and, say, the Coats family Russia, these gentlemen could wipe out all the paper moneys and take their profits on 'futures,' so simple is the affair technically. If I were a millionaire I would certainly take over one of these countries, if only for the sheer fun of the thing; indeed, it is surprising that this amusing solution has not occurred to men who profess to be 'fed up' with the absurd incompetence of the Governments they deign to tolerate. This is not fiction, it is fact. The gold countries present a different problem. Here the issue is devaluation. Keynes, Cassel, and the Americans command devaluation, but France, Italy, and Czecho-Slovakia sternly refuse. Again, were peoples ruled by scientific economics there would be no difficulty; the solution of Europe would proceed on these lines.

"A posse of British millionaires buy in Europe's mad currencies (for example, £10,000,000 would buy in Germany's 400,000,000,000 marks at 40,000 to the £), thus eliminating all national debts, while the gold peoples devaluate, thus France, say, at 75, Italy at 100, Czecho-Slovakia at 140, etc. In this way France could divide her debt by three, Italy by four, etc.; only Britain, hauled up the slippery slope of par by an America who needs British purchasing power and must have a gold partner if the gold standard is to be saved, sticking to gold, or real debts, real interest, real redemption funds, and real taxes, struggles along in the orbit of American finance, 'whirled into happiness' in the Milky Way of the Federation of American bankers."

Mr. Harrison then finds a flaw in his scheme. It would, he says, leave England in a position which would be worse than that of the other allied countries. "If we at last fix a capacity reparations figure, say £1,500,000,000 Germany could, with dollar help, cash in and stabilise to emerge free of debt, whereas we, tied to gold, have a £7,000,000,000 deadweight debt, plus that American £800,000,000; which means terrible taxes or levies here while Germany only has to find the money for reparations."

Further along Mr. Harrison calls for a forthright Anglo-American policy "which would automatically compel France to pursue reason; it is the only way. .....The trouble about Europe's American debt is that everything America bought in Europe she paid for, whereas everything that Europe bought or loaned from America was credit. The account thus cannot be mutually 'uncharged.' France charged America for rentals, port rates, rail mileage and roads; we charged £18,000,000 for transporting troops. If America cancels the debt she will have paid the only indemnity procurable; that is why, financially, France prefers the Rhine."

On this showing it would seem to us an opportunity to bring about a real peace is presented to Henry Ford. Let his next peace ship be one of gold.

Tablet Honors An Average Man

(Chicago Daily News)

Because he played four years on the scrubs and never won a letter, but never gave up.

Because he rated B plus in his classes, but never appeared in a prize list.

Because he never was president of anything.

Because he was not particularly distinguished in dress or dancing, could not play a saxophone, get up amateur theatricals, nor otherwise contribute to the general festivities.

Because he died a hero's death as he had lived his life—without applause—a college president, a General and a representative of a first class world Power unveiled a tablet to Captain David Thomas Hanson of Northwestern University on November 23.

In a ceremonial witnessed by thousands of students men of international importance paid striking tribute to Captain Hanson in his principal role as average American citizen. President Walter Dill Scott accepted in the name of the university a ten ton bowlder to which the Hanson Memorial Tablet was affixed. General Nathan William MacChesney pronounced a dedication. A. Barthelemy, consul of France, laid on the stone the Croix de Guerre and numerous citations from French army officers. A bugler blew taps. A regiment of student infantry passed in review.

While the throng that filled the campus stood silent President Scott paid his tribute to the man who was thus selected to represent the great unhonored average.

"Hanson's average standing during the entire college course was B plus," he said. "But he failed to attain a standard sufficiently high to earn for him Phi Beta Kappa.

"He played four years on the scrub team, and never once did he receive applause nor did the cheer leader call his name. But we have a record showing his participation in all important interests during his college career. He volunteered in the war with Spain, which broke out when he was a student here. It ought not to have been a surprise to us in view of his life and career in college and professionally to learn that Dave had done his duty in the world war as unselfishly and heroically on the battlefield as he had done it on this campus."

As the flag was withdrawn the inscription on the tablet was read aloud:

"In honor of David Thomas Hanson, Arts, 1905—Medicine, 1909; Captain Medical Corps, 142d Infantry, United States Army. Cited by the French Government for bravery—'An officer of great courage. At St. Etienne October 8, 1918, he rushed to the aid of a wounded man and was killed. He was a model of devotion.' Awarded the Croix de Guerre after death. A student beloved by his associates, generous, persistent, self-sacrificing. He gave himself without reserve to his Alma Mater and to his country.

"By the Alumni—November, 1922. 'He played four years on the scrubs. He never quit.'"

THE BOOKKEEPER

O Life, how mathematical thou art!
How nicely balanced are thy ledger sheets!
The entries all are there, on either side—
Debits and credits; now it but remains
To close the year's account, and turn the page.

Here, as a debit, is a costly Grief:
No diadem of pearls could be more rare;
I paid for this with tears wrung from my soul:
Nothing I owe for it—I gave my all
Of secret sorrow and unnoted pain.

But on the credit side, to balance this,
Are hours of ecstasy, set here and there
(Like precious jewels) in a silver frame
Of quiet, happy days.
I lost a friend
On such a date: item: a friend I gained;
This entry shows a blunder rashly made;
And this a bright idea that served me well;
And day by day I sold my puny strength
To find, each day, that puny strength renewed.

O Life, how mathematical thou art!
I strike a balance; draw a blood-red line
Across the white, blank spaces, that may stand
For days when nothing happened, good or bad;
And turn the page to Nineteen Twenty-three

American Foreign Investments And Foreign Policy

BY VIRGIL JORDAN

Recent events have pointedly drawn the attention of the American public to the increasing scope and complexity of the problems of foreign policy raised by the growth of American financial interests abroad. The sudden decision of the Administration, after its consistent coyness about participating in Europe's political conferences, to have an American observer at Lauranne, and the unwonted activity of this observer, is to be partly explained of course by American humanitarian interest in the Turkish problem. Vast sums are being gathered and spent by American citizens and the government for the relief of distress in these regions and it is only natural that the government should be interested in the settlement of the causes of these difficulties.

Nevertheless the relatively sudden abandonment of her aloofness from foreign political councils is in large part due to the immediate and direct interest which the United States has in commercial and industrial privileges in the Near East. Humanitarian considerations were no less compelling in the situation of Europe since the war, but in the Turkish problem there were additional factors sufficiently strong to dictate for the first time our participation in its settlement. Indeed it would almost seem as if the activity of the government was not considered sufficient to take care of the economic interests involved, since private individuals and organisations have shown an even greater and more direct concern in the Lausanne conference, and the event has precipitated a kind of small scale international conflict between the Standard Oil Company and the American representatives of an ex-sultan's heirs. All of which has served to raise anew in the public mind the questions as to what part American financial and business interests really play in her foreign policies. The recent action of Mexico in appealing to South American opinion against an alleged interference by the State Department in her treatment of the oil question, and the Conference of South American powers now being held in Washington under American auspices have stirred up additional curiosity about the direction and implications of American diplomacy.

STATE DEP'T INTERESTED

For some time past there has been a great deal of interest in the reported activity of the State Department in supervising the raising of loans by foreign governments from private sources in America. The State Department has publicly announced that it would like private financiers to consult with it before engaging in such foreign investment enterprises where foreign governments are directly concerned, in order that it may be ascertained whether such loans involve any possible dangers to American foreign policies. How far such control extends it is impossible to say, but today it is the practice of American banking houses to inform the government of applications for loans from abroad and practically no foreign securities are offered for sale in the United States, at least on a large scale, before the bankers have found out whether the government has any objection from the viewpoint of public policy. The government takes pains to assure itself that such loans will not find their way into the hands of rebel factions or be used for purposes of which it does not approve.

The implications of such a procedure are naturally far reaching, since the flow of investments will inevitably tend to be influenced not only by the conditions of international rivalry in regions being exploited, but also by the political views of the Administration in power. The long-drawn-out debate on the soundness of American policy toward Russia is a case in point, though recent developments with regard to the soundness of an investment by an America clothing workers union in the Soviet clothing industry would appear to justify the Republican Administration's disapproval of economic ventures in Russia.

INVESTING OVERSEAS

The importance of this whole problem is accentuated by the rapid growth of the export of American capital. The United States is now investing more capital overseas than ever before in her history. At the beginning of the century the entire foreign investment of the United States totalled only about a half billion dollars while that of the leading European countries far exceeded this. The greater part of American surplus capital went into the development of American railroads and her industries. Even at the outbreak of the war the United States was far behind, though in the fifteen years from 1899 to 1914 American investments chiefly in Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Latin America and the East had increased five fold to about three billion dollars. England, however, had put twenty billions into foreign investments, France had about eight billions and Germany five.

Today the United States has probably between eight and ten billions invested abroad. Probably two millions are in Canada, a billion and a quarter in Mexico; about $600 millions in the sugar industry and railroads in Cuba; in the West Indies and in Central and Latin America there are from $800 millions to $1,250 millions of American capital in mines, railways, oil fields, packing plants, plantations, banking and industries.

Europe has always appealed less to America as an investment field than these other regions and there has likewise been less interest exhibited in her economic and political policies which would have affected investment interests. Most of the American capital, exclusive of municipal and government securities in Europe, has been spent by such pioneer large scale manufacturers as the American Radiator Co., the International Harvester, the Singer Sewing Machine and United States Shoe Machineery Companies and by the Standard Oil Co. Exclusive of Standard Oil investments and of developments in Rumania and the Caucasus, it has been estimated that there is about half a billion dollars directly invested in industrial enterprises in Europe. Government, municipal, and industrial bonds and securities sold to American investors through American banks from January 1, 1919 to September, 1922 have been estimated at $2,613 millions.

These are only the roughest estimates, but they indicate that, together with the war loans amounting to nearly eleven billions, American investors today are interested in foreign countries to the extent of over twenty billions of dollars. Since the security and productivity of investments are dependent upon political stability of governments and upon their internal taxation and other economic policies as well as upon their assistance to private interests competing with foreign investors, it is inevitable that the vast increase of American capital abroad has carried with it a need for fuller participation in the international political and economic developments that have taken place since the war and that are going on rapidly now. On the other hand, this growth of international economic connections carries with it the danger that foreign policy may be too strongly bound up with the questions of financial expediency, to the neglect of interests affecting the welfare of all classes and of the world at large. International peace, for example, concerns more vitally the average citizen than it does those who handle international financing, and there is increasing anxiety among the farsighted in all countries, and especially in America, that the foreign policies of the nations may be infused with broader considerations than those of purely financial importance. For this reason America is watching the Lausanne Conference with close interest in order that it may be clearly seen whether modern diplomacy is made of dollars or ideals.

The Cheerful Course

BY S. E. KISER

To help another where he can
Is pretty good for any man;
To watch for worthiness, to find
The decent ways for being kind;
To overlook the little slights,
And be too big for petty spites;
By keeping to such rules as these
A man grows stronger by degrees.

It never costs a cent to greet
The humble stranger in the street;
Your kindly nod may give him heart
To make another, braver start;
The cheer you give along the way
May all come back another day.
You add a little to your worth
By every hope you bring to birth.

Keep back the sneer and check the frown,
Be slow to run another down;
Give petty jealousy no chance
To banish gladness from your glance;
Learn how to listen; give advice
As if it cost a heavy price;
Be quick to answer Duty's call,
And don't pretend to know it all.

Be honest, patient and alert,
Be quick to soothe and slow to hurt;
Look for the lovely and sublime;
Think always that you're in your prime.
Keep lines of trouble from your brow,
Be glad you're living here and now;
Instead of in the far Beyond,
And don't sign anybody's bond!

Neighbors Henceforth

Neighbors Henceforth. By Owen Wister. Macmillan. 7s. 6d. net.

(Reviewed By The Saturday Review, London)

Those who, during the early months of the war, were strengthened and consoled by Mr. Owen Wister's almost mystical study, 'The Pentecost of Calamity,' will not be surprised at being told that 'Neighbors Henceforth' is a beautiful book, beautiful in style, in tone, in ardent human sympathy. We may be tempted to regret that he has published it at this particular moment, although the lesson it teaches was never more urgent, because in a weary and exhausted world the origin and moral of the great struggle have become unwelcome as matters of consideration.

The recent return to Parliament of all the politicians who were openly of the "Pacifist" order, of all those who saw "faults on both sides," is but a striking piece of evidence that the necessity and virtue of the war have grown to be matters which irritate and fatigue the average man. Mr. Owen Wister is conscious of this ethical weariness, although he deprecates it and resists it. The sad fatality of things is patent to his philosophic mind. He deals, in 'Neighbors Henceforth,' with a series of experiences which he made in France in 1919, describing and commenting upon the attitude of various Americans, chiefly American soldiers, towards the French, and contrasting it with the attitude of Frenchmen towards the Americans. He does not write as a sentimentalist, nor does he attempt to conceal the misunderstandings, the crudities, the positive hostility which broke out after the Amristice between the tired and exiled young Americans and those whom they had come to help, and who now were longing for nothing more than to be left to themselves. It is a sad and an exasperating picture, but one which it is salutary to contemplate, and no one could depict it with a calmer justice than Mr. Owen Wister.

The young soldier from Ohio or Kansas was a perplexed and angry waif in the France of 1919. "He was a clean, irrelevant creature for Paris to entertain; a spirit how uncooked amid this spiced stew of the jaded New World." The homesick doughboy could see nothing in the poilu but what was unfamiliar to him, and what is strange to an uneducated exile is hateful to him. He forgot, or he had never known, the value of France to the world. The French called the Yankee a "dollar-chaser," and forgot that he had tipped the scales to victory at the worst hour. The Americans called France a "damned, dirty, stingy country of robbers." Mr. Wister shows that what stuck worst of all in the gizzards of the doughboys was that while they were being shot to help France to carry on, the French farmers were insisting on being paid for the land the Americans were entrenching. Their bitterness about this, and their resentment at similar charges, were incessant. Mr. Wister tried to silence them by telling them that in 1780 the French who came over to help the Americans were just as sore. "These Americans fleece us pitilessly, the price of everything is exorbitant," De Fersen wrote.

Such things are beyond the reach of argument, but not, it is to be hoped, beyond conciliatory explanation. Mr. Wister, who has made an exhaustive study of European conditions, calls upon the Allies to forget their momentary differences, and puts before them what he has lately seen of the ceaseless menace of Germany, unrepentant, dogged and essentially unexhausted. This admirable volume, of the variety and fullness of which we can give but the faintest idea, should be read by everyone who desires to see peace and goodwill continue between the great western protagonists. It is in the highest degree a salutary contribution to a class of literature which, for the moment, unfortunately, appeals to a fatigued audience, but must inevitably arrest future attention.

Do You Admit Defeat Too Readily?

BY J. J. MUNDY

It is a homely saying that "there is more than one way to kill a cat," meaning, of course, there is more than one way to get what you are after.

Just because you are barred or blocked in one direction in a worthy objective is no reason why you should sit down and whine about it.

Get up and try again.

If you cannot make it the second time, think it over and approach it from another angle.

This may not work out, but you cannot allow yourself to stop if you still realise you are right in wanting that certain thing.

Now all this does not mean that you should bull things through regardless of everybody and everything just because you have said it or willed it.

Extreme obstinacy is a dangerous thing, unless you are more than sure you are right.

But the quality of everlastingly sticking to things till you get them is a wonderful qualification to have, if you are a thinking person whose first question to self is, "Is it right?"

Be sure you are right, then go ahead, slowly, carefully, watchfully, but get there.

How To Figure Longitude

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest

"Is this the correct way to figure longitude when both longitudes are located in the same hemisphere? New York is 74 degrees west; San Francisco is 122 degrees West; the difference is 48 degrees? Does it make a difference if one is north or south of the other?—E. A. Bailey, Berkeley, Cal."

The method you use is correct. The result shows how many degrees San Francisco is west of New York. This number would be the same if San Francisco were on the Arctic Circle and New York on the Equator or vice versa; in other words, difference of latitude does not affect longitude. You can see this by looking at a globe, where you find the meridians of longitude all meeting in a point at either pole and widening apart as they approach the equator.

On the equator their linear distance apart, i. e. the number of miles between them, is the greatest that it can be on a globe of the earth's size, while at the poles, where they meet and blend, this distance is zero, and would be zero on any globe whatever without regard to its size. But, everywhere between the equator and the poles the size of the globe does affect the linear distance between the meridians, although it does not affect the number of degrees between them.

For instance, the circumference of the earth around the equator being about 25,000 miles, and there being 360 degrees in the circumference, each degree on the equator corresponds to nearly 70 miles, so that if New York and San Francisco both lay on the equator, the linear distance between them, on a line stretched over the globe's surface would be about 3,360 miles. But if both were on the parallel of latitude 40 degrees north, where the circumference of the earth is reduced to about 19,240 miles, and where, consequently, the length of a degree of longitude is only about 53 1-3 miles, their linear distance apart would be only 2,560 miles, although the angular distance, or the number of degrees of longitude, between them would be the same as if they were on the equator.

Now in fact New York is about three degrees farther north than San Francisco, and this slightly increases the linear distance between them, but not at all the difference of longitude, because longitude is measured everywhere parallel to the equator.

Imagine the earth swelled up to the size of the planet Jupiter, whose circumference is about eleven times that of the earth. Then, while the difference of longitude between New York and San Francisco would still be 48 degrees, their linear distance would become over 28,000 miles, or 3,000 miles more than the entire circumference of the earth. This is an elementary illustration of the fact that the size of a planet has no effect whatever upon the number of degrees, or the angular distance, separating two places on its surface, while it may enormously increase or decrease the linear distance between such places.

Transferred to the same relative locations on the moon that they have on the earth, New York and San Francisco would continue to be 48 degrees apart in longitude, while the linear distance between them would be reduced to less than 700 miles.

As already said, the truth of these statements can be rendered visually evident by means of a globe. But, having once confirmed them in that way, the reader ought to exercise his imagination by dealing with similar questions mentally.

When once familiar with a globe he can summon a picture of it in his mind which will be an astonishingly effective aid in understanding the relation to one another of places on different sides of the earth, about which we are always hearing something. No school pupil should be permitted to go into practical life without carrying in his mind a clear picture of the earth as a globe and not a flat plane, and moreover a globe continually rotating on an axis running through the north and south poles.

If I were an examiner I would pass a child who clearly understood that with a higher mark than one who could draw a good map of the United States but did not comprehened that night comes on because the side of the earth where he lives is turning around away from the place in the sky where the sun is. Commercial geography is business, mathematical geography is science, and science is the father of business—a beggar with a golden child.

Hot Drinks For Cold Days

Chocolate Cream Nectar—Melt two ounces of chocolate in a dry saucepan over a gentle heat; add half a cupful of liquid coffee, and cook it for two minutes, stirring constantly. Then add one cupful of sugar and three cupfuls of water and cook for five minutes. Flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla and serve it with a teaspoonful of whipped cream heaped on each cup.

Frothed Cafe au Lait—Pour into the table urn a quart of strong, clear coffee, that has been strained through muslin. Stir in a quart of boiling milk. Cover the urn and keep a thick cloth wrapped about it for five minutes before you serve the drink. Have ready in a widemouthed cream jug the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, to which has been added one tablespoonful granulated sugar. Put a large teaspoonful of the froth on the top of each cup of coffee as you serve it. It makes a pleasing beverage and a change from ordinary coffee.

Cocoanut Milk Chocolate—Heat a quart of milk in a double boiler, and when it is very hot stir into it four heaping tablespoonfuls of grated, unsweetened chocolate, moistened with a little cold water; allow the mixture to boil and thicken. Have ready nearly a pint of cocoanut milk into which has been stirred half a cupful of sugar and the whites of two eggs; add it to the chocolate and cook the whole for a few minutes, but do not allow it to boil. Remove the drink from the fire and serve it in chocolate cups, adding, after it is poured into the cups, a tablespoonful of sweetened whipped cream that has been mixed with a little grated cocoanut.

Ginger Cordial—Stew slowly together half a pound of figs, half a teaspoonful of allspice, a pinch of ginger, a saltspoonful each of cinnamon, mace and ground cloves, in sufficient cold water to cover the ingredients. When the figs are tender remove them from the fire and press them through a puree sieve. Return the syrup thus obtained to a clean saucepan and add three pints of ginger ale. Allow it to heat gradually, and then beat into it a scant teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water.

Stir it constantly until the mixture boils. Flavor with a few drops of lemon juice and serve it in small cordial cups, capped with a little chopped candied orange peel.

Mulled Grape Juice—Soak for fifteen minutes the grated rind of an orange in the juice of one lemon to which you have added a cupful of boiling water and a heaping tablespoonful of granulated sugar. Put the ingredients into a granite saucepan and add a quart of unfermented grape juice, four whole cloves and a pinch of ground cinnamon; bring them all to the boiling point, then let the mixture simmer for about fifteen minutes. Prepare a meringue by boiling together one cupful sugar and two tablespoonfuls water until it threads; then pour it gradually over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, stirring all the while.

Preserving The English Language

(Springfield Republican)

There should be useful work for such a permanent international organisation for the maintenance of the English language as is contemplated in the formation of an English group and an American group of well-known scholars and writers. In the English group are Lord Balfour, Robert Bridges, Professor A. T. Quiller-Couch, and Henry Newbolt: the American group includes Robert Underwood Johnson, Professor Grandgent, Professor John M. Manley and Professor Fred N. Scott. It is intended to form similar groups taking in representatives of all English-speaking peoples and providing an agency for unity which has hitherto been lacking.

It is not intended, however, to try to make the new organisation an academy with an authority which in the opinion of Balfour, Bridges, and Newbolt would "tend inevitably to divorce the literary from the spoken language." Such a divorce would be regrettable, but it is unlikely to occur, for a long time at any rate, because the vitality of English as a world language is oral rather than literary. It is otherwise with a highly-polished and much worn-down language like French, which is an ideal medium for diplomats and for treaties, but which easily breaks down under rough usage in remote lands. English is of tougher fiber and it is put to practical use as a spoken language by millions who have never learned and have no intention of learning its barbarous spelling.

In general the English language has developed and maintained itself without official guidance and with less aid from the learned than most great languages have received. It is often called a lawless language, but any language which has great vitality develops its own laws, and up to a certain point protects itself against disintegrating influences. The average speech of the English-speaking world is much more uniform than the speech of England with its provincial dialects.

Yet it is necessary to recognise that the toughest language has its breaking point, and that English under existing conditions is put under a heavy strain the cumulative effect of which has not yet had time to show itself. It is not too soon, therefore, to consider measures for protecting it, in some degree, from the wear and tear incident to its mission as a civilising and unifying force in widely-separated lands. What can be done in this direction may be a problem still to be solved, but such a body as is being organised is the right sort of agency to look for the solution.

The society for pure English of which Professor Bridges is the head sends out helpful pamphlets, and it is suggested that this agency might be used internationally. Surely something might be done for spoken English also by the use of judiciously selected phonograph records. There is no acute crisis to be dealt with, and no need for strenuous measures, but it is a good time to lay the foundation for organised efforts to keep the language from degeneration or disruption as a consequence of its wide diffusion and the intrusion of alien influences.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician knowing of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

Portugal Fears S. Africans Have Eyes On Colonies

(China Press Service)

Lisbon, Feb. 13.—Portugal is threatened with the possible loss of her important African colonial possessions, according to Admiral Leote do Rego, who has caused something of a sensation by giving an interview to the Diario de Lisboa in which he declares that Mozambique, on the east coast, and Angola, on the west coast of Africa, may be invaded by troops of the South African Union.

"The Union intends to obtain possession of these territories by fair means or foul," the admiral declares. "It is time that the people of Portugal know the truth. They should prepare to defend their interests before it is too late."

"It is reported," the admiral continues, "that General Smuts is concentrating troops on the frontiers, and that he means business. Portugal, deprived of these possessions, will be without a place among the nations of the world, for her colonial holdings constitute her importance."

The press is demanding that the government inform the people as to what really is transpiring, alleging at the same time that all questions raised in Parliament on this subject are dismissed with vague and unsatisfactory answers.

Lenin In Country Writing His Book

(Reuter's Service)

London, February 13.—The Communist member of Parliament, Mr. J. T. W. Newbold, who has returned from Moscow, in an interview said that M. Lenin was quite well and was resting in the country writing a book.

Mr. Newbold was warmly welcomed at Moscow and spent most of his time with the Red Army which he thought had a strong morale but was much decreased in numbers. The Army was now only 700,000 strong.

Mr. Newbold made nine speeches in the day of his arrival at Petrograd where his reception was most enthusiastic with brass bands welcoming him at the station.

Anti-Religious Campaign Started By Russ Communists

(China Press Service)

Moscow, Feb. 13.—An anti-religious campaign in towns and villages all over Russia has been inaugurated by the Communist party in connection with the reformation movement in the orthodox church, and the numerous trials of churchmen which are still going on in many districts.

"Religion darkens the mind," is the keynote of most of the speeches and anti-religious lectures. While unofficial support, and official recognition of the various clerical groups who broke away from the former patriarch, Tikhon, has been afforded by the Soviet government, the Communist party expresses itself against any reforms in the church which, it says, is trying to adopt Sovietism in order to live.

It demands the entire liquidation of the church. Anti-religious propaganda by lectures and otherwise is also being carried on among the Red army recruits in barracks.

Men Who Guide Destinies Of Irish Free State

Above: Ernest Blythe, Prof. John MacNeill and Kevin O'Higgins

KING George has given royal assent to the creation of the Irish Free State and has selected Timothy Healy to be Governor-General. Here are the Irishmen who will guide the destinies of the new nation: William Cosgrave is President of the Cabinet, a position similar to that of Premier. Richard Mulcahy is Minister of Defense, charged with putting down the Republican rebellion. Desmond Fitzgerald is Minister of Foreign Affairs. Kevin O'Higgins is Minister of Home Affairs. Professor John MacNeill, one of the most learned of the Irish leaders, is Minister of Education. M. Joseph McGrath is Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor. Ernest Blythe is Minister of Local Government.

Royal Dutch And Shell Co. Have Big American Holdings

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 13.—The Federal Trade Commission report on foreign ownership in the petroleum industry in the United States finds that the Royal Dutch and Shell Group owns 240,000 acres of oil lands in the United States which produces 3½ percent of the total output of crude petroleum and is one of the largest companies in the domestic petroleum industry.

The report says that the British and Dutch Governments are discriminating against American citizens by exclusive policies in the oil fields of India and the Dutch Indies and mentions the rapid exhaustion of American crude petroleum.

In conclusion the report says that Britain, having widely distributed supply and oil storage facilities and owning means of distribution, will have advantages in world trade against the United States whose supply is concentrated.

Seattle Stages A "Comeback"

Increasing at the rate of more than $363,000 each day of the year, Seattle's waterborne commerce staged a tremendous 'comeback' in 1922, piling up a grand total of close to $500,000,000 in a forward movement that continues to gain momentum and strength. At the present rate of increase Seattle in 1923 will smash the 1918 totals. In that supreme war year the port's cargo movements totaled 5,948,228 tons. At the rate of increase that has prevailed through 1922, the coming year will set a record of more than 6,500,000 tons, according to the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

Seattle's waterborne commerce in 1921 totaled 4,063,001 tons. In 1922 it has totaled 5,318,035 tons, an increase of 1,255,034 tons.

Seattle's waterborne commerce in 1922 has piled up the gigantic total of $497,504,796 in value as compared with $364,994,279 in 1921.

Revival of Alaska formed one of many contributing causes to the great showing of 1922. Seattle's Alaska trade the first eleven months of the year now closed totaled $49,066,514, as compared to $35,912,489 for the same period of 1921.

In the first eleven months of 1921 the Seattle-Atlantic seaboard trade had a total value of $17,815,663. In 1922 it has grown to $41,465,859 in value, much more than 100 percent. All the other important trade routes of the port joined in helping pile up the $132,510,517 increase in 1922.

Harding To Urge Rubber Inquiry

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 13.—It is stated at the White House that President Harding will soon recommend Congress to appropriate funds for a thorough inquiry into the world production of rubber and also for experiments in cultivation in the United States possessions, including the Philippines.

Bradstreet's Report On U. S. In 1922

tive of buying, but it may be safely claimed in a number of notable cases, these including building materials, automobiles and iron and steel, that the genesis of improvement was had first in attractive reductions of costs.

Handicapped as they were by strikes and freight rate reductions certainly, no fault of their own, the railroads made a game and patriotic fight in the desperate emergency growing out of the coal and shopmen's strikes, and, losing in gross receipts, showed a good gain in net operating income, not enough, however, to give them more than 4 of the theoretical 6 percent return on their investment.

It was said with justice in 1921 that those branches of trade which had first reflected depression or unsettlement in 1920 were among the leaders in the rally visible in the latter part of 1921. These trades, the textiles, and kindred industries, had a very full share of the improvement shown in 1922, and particularly found stimulation in higher prices for the raw materials—cotton, wool and silk; but the year was notable mainly for what are called the construction trades—iron, steel, lumber, building materials—generally leading in the improvement to an extent not visible in recent preceding years.

BUILDING IS ACTIVE

It is probable, indeed, that a large measure of the all-around improvement visible throughout the year was based upon the activity in the constructive trades. Best of these, and especially building, with its numerous allied lines, were what might be called ready-money trades, and well and frequently paid labor, which constitutes so high a percentage of all construction cost, was the chief profiter. This seemed to create a veritable flowing well from which general business drew stimulation and consequent activity.

As to the constructive side of the future, it may be said that the big feature is naturally the notable degree of betterment known and the optimism generated thereby in the past year and a half, or say since July 1, 1921, when, it is now generally agreed, the beginnings of improvement first became clearly visible. Satisfaction arising from the surge forward in domestic trade and industry in 1922, perhaps best evidenced in the wonderful year's operations in building and allied lines, has strengthened the feeling that this activity will continue well into 1923. How much more might have been accomplished if the country had not had to shoulder the terribly expensive coal and railroad strikes is, of course, not a subject to dilate upon now.

LESS WORRY APPARENT

The continuance at a faster rate of the 1921 rally in prices has been comforting, as frequently noted, chiefly because proving that, after all, there are two sides to the price situation. The rally in prices during the autumn, especially in leading farm products, unquestionably served to hearten the agricultural interest, which had theretofore apparently profited little from the year's improvement. There is visible now a great deal less worry than a year ago as to all costs of operation in view of the apparently slight visible effect of these on business in the past year, this despite the feeling that labor will ask a great deal if present prices hold.

How much effect the general increase in all costs has had in further reducing the admittedly discouraging volume of export trade does not seem to attract the attention it deserves. There is, in fact, a disposition to charge the unsettled conditions in European politics, and consequently in exchange, with most of the responsibility for this unsatisfactory buying from abroad. In this respect the gains shown in trade with other parts of the world fail to satisfy entirely. Unquestionably, feeling as regards foreign markets for American products has been favorably influenced by the rise in British exchange and the rumors that America is going to abandon its much trumpeted, but apparently untenable position of political and economic isolation.

LABOR PRESSING DEMANDS

On the other hand, there is no shutting the eyes to the fact that organised labor, buttressed by existing immigration laws and its successes of 1922, is inclined to press demands, which can only result in much industrial friction in the year to come. The most direct threat of this kind is that the nation's fuel supply will be reduced by strikes again in April next. The agricultural interest, with the feeling that it has been most hurt owing to the low prices secured for most of its products, and with hopes of success from bloc movements, is reported aggressive in demanding special legislation.

The prospects of a radical bloc in Congress which may possibly throw the country into politico-economic turmoil are not reassuring. Whether this threatened activity among the political witch doctors and medicine men will result mainly in talk, as it has done in most other years following long-continued economic troubles, witness the years following 1873 and 1893, remains to be demonstrated. That good old spread-eagle statement that this is a government of laws, not of men, may this year, however, prove to be something more than merely a bitter jest.

TRUCE IN LAWS WANTED

There really seems to have been a surfeit of laws, especially those involving new schemes of taxation, passed in America of late years, and something like a truce in this respect would be welcomed. The comforting reflection, of course, comes that, after all, many of these man-made statutes are merely "written in water;" the hard work, industry and common sense may have their price in the future as in the past, and that the laws of supply and demand, though often obscured, may be still effective.

With the most serious economic crisis that ever faced the U. S. apparently satisfactorily tided over, with the evidences of the excellent progress made since mid-year of 1921 in mind, and with three to six months of the new year's trade and industry fairly secure, the business world, imbued with a degree of optimism that verges upon confidence, faces hopefully the admittedly numerous uncertainties of 1923.

Peking Deans Deny Aiding Rail Strike

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 10.—Following the Mandate issued by the Government prohibiting the students from interfering in politics and taking the part of the strikers in the present railway strike, the Peking gendarmerie and police sent Major-General Yang Show-yin and Major-General Tien Teh-shan to call upon the Deans of the Government colleges and the University to inquire whether the professors and teachers had joined the students in their movement to support the railway strike. In answer to this inquiry the authorities stated that the agitation was merely carried out by the students themselves.

The students have within the last few days formed a union to support the railwaymen though they are not specifically named, the union being called "The Union to Support of Worker." The police authorities have decided to dissolve this society.

A group of Members of Parliament headed by Mr. Lu Pan-lin and Mr. Wang Heng have invited the members of both Houses to an informal meeting tomorrow at the House of Representatives to discuss the problem of the railway strike.

It is believed that the Chancellor of the University, Mr. Tsai Yuan-pei, will shortly be relieved of his post and that Mr. Chang Shih-chow will be appointed in his place.

Italians Decide Ship Subsidies Must Be Sliced

(China Press Service)

Rome.—The Italian government is seriously considering the heavy losses caused the state by shipping subsidies, and has already decided on reductions which will involve the saving of 73,000,000 lire annually.

Payments made to the bigger lines are to be reduced, and various smaller lines which are not justifying their existence are to be abolished altogether. The government proposes to limit shipping subsidies to a maximum of 200,000,000 lire annually. It will continue those lines absolutely essential to the nation's interests—lines which maintain communications between the mainland, the islands and the colonies.

It will also grant strictly temporary subsidies to lines of "commercial penetration" for the subsequent maintenance of which the companies running them will be responsible.

So far as the passenger service is concerned, this question is closely allied with the problem of the emigration to the United States. If arrangements can be made with the United States and with South American countries whereby it will be possible for the thousands of Italians now eager to emigrate, to leave the country the principal Italian lines handling this traffic will not be compelled to make their outward voyages at a loss.

The chief trouble is the government is obliged to cover the deficit on each voyage, so the companies have no particular interest in reducing expenses.

Anniversary Of Copernicus' Birth To Be Celebrated

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 13.—The 450th anniversary of the birth of Nicolas Copernicus, "The Founder of Modern Astronomy," will be celebrated at Thorn in Poland on February 19.

Note: At the time of the birth of Copernicus Thorn belonged to Poland but was afterwards restored to Germany. Poland and Germany have always been in contention for the honor of having produced the famous astronomer. The wheel of Fortune has turned again and now Poland again holds Thorn.

TROUBLE AT ICHANG

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, Feb. 13.—According to a telegram from an official source fighting is reported above Patung.

Ichang has been placed under martial-law and censors have been installed on the orders of General Wang commanding the Eighth Division.
